

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. TO

ANTHONY TROLLOPE,

THESE VERSES

ARE GRATEFULLY INSCRIBED.

*(Go, little Book, on this thy first emprise :
If that thou 'scape the critic Ogre-land,
And come to where young Beauty, with bright eyes,
Listless at noon, shall take thee in her hand,
Tell her that nought in thy poor Master stirs
Of art, or grace, or song,—that is not Hers.)*

A DEAD LETTER.

'A cœur blessé—l'ombre et le silence.'—H. DE BALZAC.

I.

I DREW it from its china tomb ;—

30 It came out stained and dusky,
Still haunted by some thin perfume
That, years ago, was musky.

An old, old letter,—folded still!

To read with due composure

I sought the sun-lit window-sill

17 Above the gray enclosure,

That, glimmering in the sultry haze,
Faint-flowered, dimly shaded,
Slumbered, like Goldsmith's Madam Blaize,
Bedizened and brocaded.

A queer old place ! You'd surely say
Some tea-board garden-maker
Had planned it in Dutch William's day
To please some florist Quaker,

So trim it was. The yew-trees still,
With pious care perverted,
Grew in the same grim shapes ; and still
The lipless dolphin spurted ;

Still in his wonted state abode
The broken-nosed Apollo ;
And still the cypress-arbour showed
The same umbrageous hollow.

Only,—as fresh young Beauty gleams

From coffee-coloured laces;—

So peeped from its old-fashioned dreams

The fresher modern traces ;

For idle mallet, hoop, and ball

Upon the lawn were lying ;

A magazine, a tumbled shawl,

Round which the swifts were flying ;

And, tossed beside the Guelder rose,

A heap of rainbow knitting,

Where, blinking in her pleased repose,

A Persian cat was sitting.

‘ A place to love in,—live,—for aye,

If we too, like Tithonus,

Could find some God to stretch the gray,

Scant life the Fates have thrown us ;

‘ But now by steam we run our race
With buttoned heart and pocket ;
Our Love’s a gilded, surplus grace,—
Just like an empty locket.

“ The time is out of joint.” Who will,
May strive to make it better ;
For me, this warm old window-sill,
And this old dusty letter.’

II.

‘ Dear John (the letter ran), it can’t, can’t be,
For Father’s gone to Chorley Fair with Sam,
And Mother’s storing Apples,—Prue and Me
Up to our Elbows making Damson Jam :
But we shall meet before a Week is gone,—
“ ’Tis a long Lane that has no Turning,” John !

‘ Only till Sunday next, and then you ’ll wait
    Behind the White-Thorn, by the broken Stile—
We can go round and catch them at the Gate,
    All to ourselves, for nearly one long Mile ;
Dear Prue won’t look, and Father he ’ll go on,
And Sam’s two Eyes are all for Cissy, John!

‘ John, she ’s so smart,—with every Ribbon new,
    Flame-coloured Sack, and Crimson Padesoy ;
As proud as proud ; and has the Vapours too,
    Just like My Lady ;—calls poor Sam a boy,
And vows no Sweet-Heart ’s worth the Thinking-on Till he ’s past Thirty,—I know better, John!

‘ My dear, I don’t think that I thought of much
    Before we knew each other, I and you ;
And now, why, John, your least, least Finger-touch,
    Gives me enough to think a Summer through.

See, for I send you Something ! There, 'tis gone !
Look in this corner,—mind you find it, John !

III.

This was the matter of the note,—
A long-forgot deposit,
Dropped in an Indian dragon's throat,
Deep in a fragrant closet,

Piled with a dapper Dresden world,—
Beaux, beauties, prayers, and poses,—
Bonzes with squat legs undercurled,
And great jars filled with roses.

Ah, heart that wrote ! Ah, lips that kissed !
You had no thought or presage
Into what keeping you dismissed
Your simple old-world message

A reverent one. Though we to-day
Distrust beliefs and powers,
The artless, ageless things you say
Are fresh as May's own flowers,

Starring some pure primeval spring,
Ere Gold had grown despotic,—
Ere Life was yet a selfish thing,
Or Love a mere exotic.

I need not search too much to find
Whose lot it was to send it,
That feel upon me yet the kind,
Soft hand of her who penned it ;

And see, through two-score years of smoke,
In bygone, quaint apparel,
Shine from yon time-black Norway oak
The face of Patience Caryl,—

The pale, smooth forehead, silver-tressed ;
The gray gown, primly flowered ;
The spotless, stately coif whose crest
Like Hector's horse-plume towered ;

And still the sweet half-solemn look
Where some past thought was clinging,
As when one shuts a serious book
To hear the thrushes singing.

I kneel to you ! Of those you were,
Whose kind old hearts grow mellow,—
Whose fair old faces grow more fair
As Point and Flanders yellow ;

Whom some old store of garnered grief,
Their placid temples shading,
Crowns like a wreath of autumn leaf
With tender tints of fading.

A Dead Letter.

Peace to your soul ! You died unwed—

Despite this loving letter.

And what of John ? The less that 's said

Of John, I think, the better.

A GENTLEMAN OF THE OLD SCHOOL.

I.

HE lived in that past Georgian day,
When men were less inclined to say
That 'Time is Gold,' and overlay
    With toil their pleasure ;
He held some land, and dwelt thereon,—
Where, I forget,—the house is gone ;
His Christian name, I think, was John,—
    His surname, Leisure.

A Gentleman of the Old School.    11

II.

Reynolds has painted him,—a face
Filled with a fine, old-fashioned grace,
Fresh-coloured, frank, with ne'er a trace

Of trouble shaded ;

The eyes are blue, the hair is drest
In plainest way,—one hand is prest
Deep in a flapped canary vest,

With buds brocaded.

III.

He wears a brown old Brunswick coat,
With silver buttons,—round his throat,
A soft cravat ;—in all you note

An elder fashion,—

A strangeness, which, to us who shine
In shapely hats,—whose coats combine
All harmonies of hue and line,

Inspire compassion.

IV.

He lived so long ago, you see ;
 Men were untravelled then, but we,
 Like Ariel, post o'er land and sea
                     With careless parting ;
 He found it quite enough for him
 To smoke his pipe in 'garden trim,'
 And watch, about the fish tank's brim,
                     The swallows darting.

V.

He liked the well-wheel's creaking tongue,—
 He liked the thrush that stopped and sung,—
 He liked the drone of flies among
                     His netted peaches ;
 He liked to watch the sunlight fall
 Athwart his ivied orchard wall ;
 Or pause to catch the cuckoo's call
                     Beyond the beeches.

VI.

His were the times of Paint and Patch,
And yet no Ranelagh could match
The sober doves that round his thatch
    Spread tails and sidled ;
He liked their ruffling, puffed content,—
For him their drowsy wheelings meant
More than a Mall of Beaux that bent,
    Or Belles that bridled.

VII.

Not that, in truth, when life began
He shunned the flutter of the fan ;
He too had maybe ' pinked his man '
    In Beauty's quarrel ;
But now his ' fervent youth ' had flown
Where lost things go ; and he was grown
As staid and slow-paced as his own
    Old hunter, Sorrel.

VIII.

Yet still he loved the chase, and held
That no composer's score excelled
The merry horn, when Sweetlip swelled
      Its jovial riot ;
But most his measured words of praise
Caressed the angler's easy ways,—
His idly meditative days,—
      His rustic diet.

IX.

Not that his 'meditating' rose
Beyond a sunny summer doze ;
He never troubled his repose
      With fruitless prying ;
But held, as law for high and low,
What God conceals no man can know,
And smiled away inquiry so,
      Without replying.

We read—alas, how much we read !—
The jumbled strifes of creed and creed,
With endless controversies feed

Our groaning tables ;
His books—and they sufficed him—were
Cotton's ' Montaigne,' ' The Grave ' of Blair,
A ' Walton '—much the worse for wear,
And ' Æsop's Fables.'

xi.

One more,—' The Bible.' Not that he
Had searched its page as deep as we ;
No sophistries could make him see

Its slender credit ;
It may be that he could not count
The sires and sons to Jesse's fount,—
He liked the ' Sermon on the Mount,'—
And more, he read it.

XII.

Once he had loved, but failed to wed,
 A red-cheeked lass who long was dead ;
 His ways were far too slow, he said,
                     To quite forget her ;
 And still when time had turned him gray,
 The earliest hawthorn buds in May
 Would find his lingering feet astray,
                     Where first he met her.

XIII.

' In Cælo Quies ' heads the stone
 On Leisure's grave,—now little known,
 A tangle of wild-rose has grown
                     So thick across it ;
 The ' Benefactions ' still declare
 He left the clerk an elbow-chair,
 And ' 12 Pence Yearly to Prepare
                     A Christmas Posset.'

XIV.

Lie softly, Leisure ! Doubtless you,
With too serene a conscience drew
Your easy breath, and slumbered through
The gravest issue ;
But we, to whom our age allows
Scarce space to wipe our weary brows,
Look down upon your narrow house,
Old friend, and miss you !

A GENTLEWOMAN OF THE OLD SCHOOL.

I.

SHE lived in Georgian era too.
Most women then, if bards be true,
Succumbed to Routs and Cards, or grew
Devout and acid.
But hers was neither fate. She came
Of good west-country folk, whose fame
Has faded now. For us her name
Is 'Madam Placid.'

II.

Patience or Prudence,—what you will,
Some prefix faintly fragrant still
As those old musky scents that fill
Our grandams' pillows ;
And for her youthful portrait take
Some long-waist child of Hudson's make,
Stiffly at ease beside a lake
With swans and willows.

III.

I keep her later semblance placed
Beside my desk,—'tis lawned and laced,
In shadowy sanguine stipple traced
By Bartolozzi ;
A placid face, in which surprise
Is seldom seen, but yet there lies
Some vestige of the laughing eyes
Of arch Piozzi.

20 A Gentlewoman of the Old School.

IV.

For her e'en Time grew debonair.
He, finding cheeks unclaimed of care,
With late-delayed faint roses there,
                    And lingering dimples,
Had spared to touch the fair old face,
And only kissed with Vauxhall grace
The soft white hand that stroked her lace,
                    Or smoothed her wimples.

V.

So left her beautiful. Her age
Was comely as her youth was sage,
And yet she once had been the rage ;—
                    It hath been hinted,
Indeed, affirmed by one or two,
Some spark at Bath (as sparks will do)
Inscribed a song to ' Lovely Prue,'
                    Which Urban printed.

VI.

I know she thought ; I know she felt ;
Perchance could sum, I doubt she spelt,
She knew as little of the Celt
As of the Saxon ;
I know she played and sang, for yet
We keep the tumble-down spinet
To which she quavered ballads set
By Arne or Jackson.

VII.

Her tastes were not refined as ours,
She liked plain food and homely flowers,
Refused to paint, kept early hours,
Went clad demurely ;
Her art was sampler-work design,
Fireworks for her were ' vastly fine,'
Her luxury was elder-wine,—
She loved that ' purely.'

22 A Gentlewoman of the Old School.

VIII.

She was renowned, traditions say,
For June conserves, for curds and whey,
For finest tea (she called it 'tay'),
And ratafia ;
She knew, for sprains, what bands to choose,
Could tell the sovereign wash to use
For freckles, and was learned in brews
As erst Medea.

IX.

Yet studied little. She would read,
On Sundays, ' Pearson on the Creed,'
Though, as I think, she could not heed
His text profoundly ;
Seeing she chose for her retreat
The warm west-looking window-seat,
Where, if you chanced to raise your feet,
You slumbered soundly.

X.

This, 'twixt ourselves. The dear old dame,
In truth, was not so much to blame ;
The excellent divine I name
Is scarcely stirring ;
Her plain-song piety preferred
Pure life to precept. If she erred,
She knew her faults. Her softest word
Was for the erring.

XI.

If she had loved, or if she kept
Some ancient memory green, or wept
Over the shoulder-knot that slept
Within her cuff-box,
I know not. Only this I know,
At sixty-five she'd still her beau,
A lean French exile, lame and slow,
With monstrous snuff-box.

XII.

Younger than she, well-born and bred.
She 'd found him in St. Giles', half-dead
Of teaching French for nightly bed
And daily dinners ;
Starving, in fact, 'twixt want and pride ;
And so, henceforth, you always spied
His rusty 'pigeon-wings' beside Her Mechlin pinnars.

XIII.

He worshipped her, you may suppose.
She gained him pupils, gave him clothes,
Delighted in his dry bon-mots
And cackling laughter ;
And when, at last, the long duet
Of conversation and picquet
Ceased with her death, of sheer regret
He died soon after.

XIV.

Dear Madam Placid ! Others knew
Your worth as well as he, and threw
Their flowers upon your coffin too,

I take for granted.

Their loves are lost ; but still we see
Your kind and gracious memory
Bloom yearly with the almond tree
The Frenchman planted.

UNE MARQUISE.

A RHYMED MONOLOGUE IN THE LOUVRE.

' Belle Marquise, vos beaux yeux me font mourir d'amour.'

MOLIÈRE.

I.

As you sit there at your ease,

O Marquise !

And the men flock round your knees

Thick as bees,

Mute at every word you utter,

Servants to your least frill flutter,

• ' Belle Marquise !'—

As you sit there growing prouder,
And your ringed hands glance and go,
And your fan's frou-frou sounds louder,
And your 'beaux yeux' flash and glow ;—
Ah, you used them on the Painter,
As you know,
For the Sieur Larose spoke fainter,
Bowing low,
Thanked Madame and Heaven for mercy
That each sitter was not Circe,
Or at least he told you so ;—
Growing proud, I say, and prouder
To the crowd that come and go,
Dainty Deity of Powder,
Fickle Queen of Fop and Beau,
As you sit where lustres strike you,
Sure to please,
Do we love you most or like you,
'Belle Marquise !'

II.

You are fair ; O yes, we know it
Well, Marquise ;
For he swore it, your last poet,
On his knees ;
And he called all heaven to witness
Of his ballad and its fitness,
‘ Belle Marquise !’—
You were everything in ère
(With exception of sévère),—
You were cruelle and rebelle,
With the rest of rhymes as well ;
You were ‘ Reine,’ and ‘ Mère d’Amour ;’
You were ‘ Vénus à Cythère ;’
‘ Sappho mise en Pompadour,’
And ‘ Minerve en Parabère ;’
You had every grace of heaven
In your most angelic face,

With the nameless finer leaven
    Lent of blood and courtly race ;
And he added, too, in duty,
Ninon's wit and Boufflers' beauty ;
And La Vallière's yeux veloutés
        Followed these ;
And you liked it, when he said it
        (On his knees),
And you kept it, and you read it,
        ‘ Belle Marquise !’

III.

Yet with us your toilet graces
        Fail to please,
And the last of your last faces,
        And your mise ;
For we hold you just as real,
        ‘ Belle Marquise !’

Une Marquise.

As your Bergers and Bergères,
Iles d'Amour, and Batelières ;
As your parcs, and your Versailles,
Gardens, grottoes, and rocailles ;
As your Naiads and your trees ;—
    Just as near the old ideal
                    Calm and ease,
As the Venus there, by Coustou,
    That a fan would make quite flighty,
Is to her the gods were used to,—
    Is to grand Greek Aphroditè,
                    Sprung from seas.
You are just a porcelain trifle,
                    ‘ Belle Marquise ! ’
Just a thing of puffs and patches,
Made for madrigals and catches,
Not for heart-wounds, but for scratches,
    O Marquise !

Just a pinky porcelain trifle

' Belle Marquise !'

Wrought in rarest rose-Dubarry,

Quick at verbal point and parry,

Clever, doubtless ;—but to marry,

No, Marquise !

IV.

For your Cupid, you have clipped him,

Rouged and patched him, nipped and snipped him,

And with chapeau-bras equipped him,

' Belle Marquise !'

Just to arm you through your wife-time,

And the languors of your life-time,

' Belle Marquise !'

Say, to trim your toilet tapers,

Or,—to twist your hair in papers,

Or,—to wean you from the vapours ;—

As for these,

You are worth the love they give you,
Till a fairer face outlive you,

Or a younger grace shall please ;
Till the coming of the crows' feet,
And the backward turn of beaux' feet,

' Belle Marquise !'—

Till your frothed-out life's commotion
Settles down to Ennui's ocean,
Or a dainty sham devotion,

' Belle Marquise !'

v.

No : we neither like nor love you,

' Belle Marquise !'

Lesser lights we place above you,—
Milder merits better please.

We have passed from Philosophe-dom
Into plainer modern days,—

Grown contented in our oafdom,

Giving grace not all the praise ;

And, en partant, Arsinoé,—

Without malice whatsoever,—

We shall counsel to our Chloë

To be rather good than clever ;

For we find it hard to smother

Just one little thought, Marquise !

Wittier perhaps than any other,—

You were neither Wife nor Mother,

‘ Belle Marquise ! ’

THE STORY OF ROSINA.

AN INCIDENT IN THE LIFE OF FRANÇOIS BOUCHER.

'On ne badine pas avec l'amour.'

THE scene, a wood. A shepherd tip-toe creeping,

Carries a basket, whence a billet peeps,

To lay beside a silk-clad Oread sleeping

Under an urn ; yet not so sound she sleeps

But that she plainly sees his graceful act ;

'He thinks she thinks he thinks she sleeps,' in fact.

One hardly needs the 'Peint par François Boucher.'

All the sham life comes back again,—one sees
Alcôves, Ruelles, the Lever, and the Coucher,

Patches and Ruffles, Roués and Marquises ;
The little great, the infinite small thing
That ruled the hour when Louis Quinze was king.

For these were yet the days of halcyon weather,—

A Martin's summer when the nation swam,
Aimless and easy as a wayward feather,
Down the full tide of jest and epigram ;—
A careless time, when France's bluest blood
Beat to the tune of ' After us the flood.'

Plain Roland still was placidly 'inspecting,'

Not now Camille had stirred the Café Foy ;
Marat was young, and Guillotin dissecting,
Corday unborn, and Lamballe in Savoie ;
No faubourg yet had heard the Tocsin ring :—
This was the summer—when Grasshoppers sing.

And far afield were sun-baked savage creatures,
    Female and male, that tilled the earth, and wrung
Want from the soil ;—lean things with livid features,
    Shape of bent man, and voice that never sung :
These were the Ants, for yet to Jacques Bonhomme
Tumbrils were not, nor any sound of drum.

But Boucher was a Grasshopper, and painted,—
    Rose-water Raphael,—en couleur de rose,
The crowned Caprice, whose sceptre, nowise sainted,
    Swayed the light realm of ballets and bon-mots ;—
Ruled the dim bouddoir's demi-jour, or drove Pink-ribboned flocks through some pink-flowered grove.

A laughing Dame, who sailed a laughing cargo
    Of flippant loves along the Fleuve du Tendre ;
Whose greatest grace was jupes à la Camargo,
    Whose gentlest merit gentiment se rendre ;—
Queen of the rouge-cheeked Hours, whose footsteps fell
    To Rameau's notes, in dances by Gardel—

Her Boucher served, till Nature's self betraying,
As Wordsworth sings, the heart that loved her not,
Made of his work a land of languid Maying,
Filled with false gods and muses misbegot ;—
A Versailles Eden of cosmetic youth,
Wherein most things went naked, save the Truth.

Once, only once,—perhaps the last night's revels
Palled in the after-taste,—our Boucher sighed
For that first beauty, falsely named the Devil's,
Young-lipped, unlessoned, joyous, and clear-eyed ;
Flung down his palette like a weary man,
And sauntered slowly through the Rue Sainte-Anne.

Wherefore, we know not ; but, at times, far nearer
Things common come, and lineaments half-seen
Grow in a moment magically clearer ;—
Perhaps, as he walked, the grass he called 'too green'
Rose and rebuked him, or the earth 'ill-lighted '
Silently smote him with the charms he slighted.

But, as he walked, he tired of god and goddess,
Nymphs that deny, and shepherds that appeal ;
Stale seemed the trick of kerchief and of bodice,
Folds that confess, and flutters that reveal ;
Then as he grew more sad and disenchanted,
Forthwith he spied the very thing he wanted.

So, in the Louvre, the passer-by might spy some
Arch-looking head, with half-evasive air,
Start from behind the fruitage of Van Huysum,
Grape-bunch and melon, nectarine and pear :—
Here 'twas no Venus of Batavian city,
But a French girl, young, piquante, bright, and pretty.

Graceful she was, as some slim marsh-flower shaken
Among the sallows, in the breezy Spring ;
Blithe as the first blithe song of birds that waken,
Fresh as a fresh young pear-tree blossoming ;
Black was her hair as any blackbird's feather ;
Just for her mouth, two rose-buds grew together.

Sloes were her eyes ; but her soft cheeks were peaches,
Hued like an Autumn pippin, where the red
Seems to have burned right through the skin, and reaches

E'en to the core ; and if you spoke, it spread
Up till the blush had vanquished all the brown,
And, like two birds, the sudden lids dropped down.

As Boucher smiled, the bright black eyes ceased dancing,

As Boucher spoke, the dainty red eclipse
Filled all the face from cheek to brow, enhancing
Half a shy smile that dawned around the lips.

Then a shrill mother rose upon the view ;
' Cerises, M'sieu ? Rosine, dépêchez-vous !'

Deep in the fruit her hands Rosina buries,
Soon in the scale the ruby bunches lay.
The painter, watching the suspended cherries,
Never had seen such little fingers play ;—
As for the arm, no Hebe's could be rounder ;
Low in his heart a whisper said ' I've found her.'

‘Woo first the mother, if you’d win the daughter!’

Boucher was charmed, and turned to Madame Mère,
Almost with tears of suppliance besought her
Leave to immortalize a face so fair ;
Praised and cajoled so craftily that straightway
Voici Rosina,—standing at his gateway.

Shy at the first, in time Rosina’s laughter
Rang through the studio as the girlish face
Peeped from some painter’s travesty, or after Showed like an Omphalè in lion’s case ;
Gay as a thrush, that from the morning dew
Pipes to the light its clear ‘Réveillez-vous.’

Just a mere child with sudden ebullitions,
Flashes of fun, and little bursts of song,
Petulant pains, and fleeting pale contritions,
Mute little moods of misery and wrong ;
Only a child, of Nature’s rarest making,
Wistful and sweet,—and with a heart for breaking !

Day after day the little loving creature
Came and returned ; and still the Painter felt,
Day after day, the old theatric Nature
Fade from his sight, and like a shadow melt,—
Paniers and Powder, Pastoral and Scene,
Killed by the simple beauty of Rosine.

As for the girl, she turned to her new being,—
Came, as a bird that hears its fellow call ;
Blessed, as the blind that blesses God for seeing ;
Grew as a flower on which the sun-rays fall ;
Loved if you will ;—she never named it so :
Love comes unseen,—we only see it go.

There is a figure among Boucher's sketches,
Slim,—a child-face, the eyes as black as beads,
Head set askance, and hand that shyly stretches
Flowers to the passer, with a look that pleads.
This was no other than Rosina surely ;—
None Boucher knew could else have looked so purely.

But forth her Story, for I will not tarry,—

Whether he loved the little ‘nut-brown maid ;’

If, of a truth, he counted this to carry

Straight to the end, or just the whim obeyed,

Nothing we know, but only that before

More had been done, a finger tapped the door.

Opened Rosina to the unknown comer.

’Twas a young girl—‘une pauvre fille,’ she said,

’They had been growing poorer all the summer ;

Father was lame, and mother lately dead ;

Bread was so dear, and,—oh ! but want was bitter,

Would Monsieur pay to have her for a sitter ?

Men called her pretty.’ Boucher looked a minute :

Yes, she was pretty ; and her face beside

Shamed her poor clothing by a something in it,—

Grace, and a presence hard to be denied ;

This was no common offer it was certain ;—

’Allez, Rosina ! sit behind the curtain.’

Meantime the Painter, with a mixed emotion,
Drew and re-drew his ill-disguised Marquise,
Passed in due time from praises to devotion ;
Last when his sitter left him on his knees,
Rose in a maze of passion and surprise,—
Rose, and beheld Rosina's saddened eyes.

Thrice-happy France, whose facile sons inherit
Still in the old traditionary way,
Power to enjoy—with yet a rarer merit,
Power to forget. Our Boucher rose, I say,
With hand still prest to heart, with pulses throbbing,
And blankly stared at poor Rosina sobbing.

‘ This was no model, M'sieu, but a lady.’

Boucher was silent, for he knew it true.

‘ Est-ce que vous l'aimez ? ’ Never answer made he !

Ah, for the old love fighting with the new !

‘ Est-ce que vous l'aimez ? ’ sobbed Rosina's sorrow.

‘ Bon ! ’ murmured Boucher ; ‘ she will come to-morrow.’

How like a Hunter thou, O Time, dost harry
    Us, thine oppressed, and pleased with the chase
Sparest to strike thy sorely-running quarry,
    Following not less with unrelenting face.
Time, if Love hunt, and Sorrow hunt, with thee,
Woe to the Fawn ! There is no way to flee.

Woe to Rosina ! By To-morrow stricken,
    Swift from her life the sun of gold declined.
Nothing remained but those gray shades that thicken,
    Cloud and the cold,—the loneliness—the wind.
Only a little by the door she lingers,—
Waits, with wrung lip and interwoven fingers.

No, not a sign. Already with the Painter
    Grace and the nymphs began recovered reign ;
Truth was no more, and Nature, waxing fainter,
    Paled to the old sick Artifice again.
Seeing Rosina going out to die,
How should he know what Fame had passed him by ?

Going to die !. For who shall waste in sadness,
Shorn of the sun, the very warmth and light,
Miss the green welcome of the sweet earth's gladness,
Lose the round life that only Love makes bright :
There is no succour if these things are taken.
None but Death loves the lips by Love forsaken.

So, in a little, when those Two had parted,—
Tired of himself, and weary as before,
Boucher remembering, sick and sorry-hearted,
Stayed for a moment by Rosina's door.
' Ah, the poor child !' the neighbours cry of her,
' Morte, M'sieu, morte ! On dit,—des peines du cœur.'

Just for a second, say, the tidings shocked him,
Say, in his eye a sudden tear-drop shone,—
Just for a second a dull feeling mocked him
With a vague sense of something priceless gone ;
Then,—for at best 'twas but the empty type,
The husk of man with which the days were ripe,—

Then, he forgot her. But, for you that slew her,

You, her own sister, that with airy ease,

Just for a moment's fancy could undo her,

Pass on your way. A little while, Marquise,

Be the sky silent, be the sea serene ;

A pleasant passage—à Sainte Guillotine.

As for Rosina,—for the quiet sleeper,

Whether stone hides her, or the happy grass,

If the sun quickens, if the dews bewEEP her,

Laid in the Madeleine or Montparnasse,

Nothing we know,—but that her heart is cold,

Poor beating heart ! And so the story's told.

A REVOLUTIONARY RELIC.

I.

OLD it is, and worn and battered,
As I lift it from the stall ;
And the leaves are frayed and tattered,
And the pendent sides are shattered,
Pierced and blackened by a ball.

II.

'Tis the tale of grief and gladness
Told by sad St. Pierre of yore,
That in front of France's madness
Hangs a strange seductive sadness,
Grown pathetic evermore.

III.

And a perfume round it hovers,
Which the pages half reveal,
For a folded corner covers,
Interlaced, two names of lovers,—
A 'Savignac' and 'Lucile.'

IV.

As I read I marvel whether,
In some pleasant old château,
Once they read this book together,
In the scented summer weather,
With the shining Loire below ?

V.

Nooked—secluded from espial,
Did Love slip and snare them so,
While the hours danced round the dial
To the sound of flute and viol,
In that pleasant old château ?

VI.

Did it happen that no single
Word of mouth could either speak ?
Did the brown and gold hair mingle,
Did the shamed skin thrill and tingle
To the shock of cheek and cheek ?

VII.

Did they feel with that first flushing
Some new sudden power to feel,
Some new inner spring set gushing
At the names together rushing
Of ' Savignac ' and ' Lucile ' ?

VIII.

Did he drop on knee before her—
' Son Amour, son Cœur, sa Reine '—
In his high-flown way, adore her,
Urgent, eloquent implore her,
Plead his pleasure and his pain ?

IX.

Did she turn with sight swift-dimming,
And the quivering lip we know,
With the full, slow eyelid brimming,
With the languorous pupil swimming,
Like the love of Mirabeau ?

X.

Stretch her hand from cloudy frilling,
For his eager lips to press ;
In a flash all fate fulfilling
Did he catch her, trembling, thrilling—
Crushing life to one caress ?

XI.

Did they sit in that dim sweetness
Of attained love's after-calm,
Marking not the world—its meetness,
Marking Time not, nor his fleetness,
Only happy, palm to palm ?

XII.

Till at last she,—sunlight smiting
    Red on wrist and cheek and hair,—
Sought the page where love first lighting,
Fixed their fate, and, in this writing,
    Fixed the record of it there.

*                    *                    *

XIII.

Did they marry midst the smother,
    Shame and slaughter of it all ?
Did she wander like that other
Woful, wistful, wife and mother,
    Round and round his prison wall ;—

XIV.

Wander wailing, as the plover
    Waileth, wheeleth, desolate,
Heedless of the hawk above her,
While as yet the rushes cover,
    Waning fast, her wounded mate ;—

XV.

Wander, till his love's eyes met hers,
Fixed and wide in their despair ?
Did he burst his prison fetters,
Did he write sweet, yearning letters, ”
‘ A Lucile,—en Angleterre ’ ?

XVI.

Letters where the reader, reading,
Halts him with a sudden stop,
For he feels a man's heart bleeding,
Draining out its pain's exceeding—
Half a life, at every drop :

XVII.

Letters where Love's iteration
Seems to warble and to rave ;
Letters where the pent sensation
Leaps to lyric exultation,
Like a song-bird from a grave.

XVIII.

Where, through Passion's wild repeating

Peeps the Pagan and the Gaul,

Politics and love competing,

Abelard and Cato greeting,

Rousseau ramping over all.

XIX.

Yet your critic's right—you waive it,

Whirled along the fever-flood ;

And its touch of truth shall save it,

And its tender rain shall lave it,

For at least you read Amavit,

Written there in tears of blood.

XX.

Did they hunt him to his hiding,

Tracking traces in the snow ?

Did they tempt him out, confiding,

Shoot him ruthless down, deriding,

By the ruined old château ?

XXI.

Left to lie, with thin lips resting
Frozen to a smile of scorn,
Just the bitter thought's suggesting,
At this excellent new jesting
Of the rabble Devil-born.

XXII.

Till some 'tiger-monkey,' finding
These few words the covers bear,
Some swift rush of pity blinding,
Sent them in the shot-pierced binding

'A Lucile, en Angleterre.'

* * *

XXIII.

Fancies only! Nought the covers,
Nothing more the leaves reveal,
Yet I love it for its lovers,
For the dream that round it hovers
Of 'Savignac' and 'Lucile.'

BEFORE SEDAN.

'The dead hand clasped a letter.'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

HERE, in this leafy place,
Quiet he lies,
Cold, with his sightless face
Turned to the skies ;
'Tis but another dead ;
All you can say is said.

Carry his body hence,—

Kings must have slaves ;

Kings climb to eminence

Over men's graves :

So this man's eye is dim ;—

Throw the earth over him.

What was the white you touched,

There, at his side ?

Paper his hand had clutched

Tight ere he died ;—

Message or wish, may be ;—

Smooth the folds out and see.

Hardly the worst of us

Here could have smiled !—

Only the tremulous

Words of a child ;—

Prattle, that has for stops

Just a few ruddy drops.

Look. She is sad to miss,
Morning and night,
His—her dead father's—kiss ;
Tries to be bright,
Good to mamma, and sweet.
That is all. ' Marguerite.'

Ah, if beside the dead
Slumbered the pain !
Ah, if the hearts that bled
Slept with the slain !
If the grief died ;—But no ;—
Death will not have it so.

A V I C E.

‘On serait tenté de lui dire, Bonjour, Mademoiselle la Bergeronnette.’—VICTOR HUGO.

I.

THOUGH the voice of modern schools
Has demurred,
By the dreamy Asian creed
’Tis averred,
That the souls of men, released
From their bodies when deceased,
Sometimes enter in a beast,—
Or a bird.

II.

I have watched you long, Avice,—

Watched you so,

I have found your secret out ;

And I know

That the restless ribboned things,

Where your slope of shoulder springs,

Are but undeveloped wings

That will grow.

III.

When you enter in a room,

It is stirred

With the wayward, flashing flight

Of a bird ;

And you speak—and bring with you

Leaf and sun-ray, bud and blue,

And the wind-breath and the dew

At a word.

IV.

When you called to me my name,

Then again

When I heard your single cry

In the lane,

All the sound was as the 'sweet'

Which the birds to birds repeat

In their thank-song to the heat

After rain.

V.

When you sang the Schwalbenlied,

'Twas absurd,—

But it seemed no human note

That I heard ;

For your strain had all the trills,

All the little shakes and stills,

Of the over-song that rills

From a bird.

VI.

You have just their eager, quick

‘Airs de tête,’

All their flush and fever-heat

When elate ;

Every bird-like nod and beck,

And a bird’s own curve of neck

When she gives a little peck

To her mate.

VII.

When you left me, only now,

In that furred,

Puffed, and feathered Polish dress,

I was spurred

Just to catch you, O my Sweet,

By the bodice trim and neat,—

Just to feel your heart a-beat,

Like a bird.

VIII.

Yet, alas ! Love's light you deign

But to wear

As the dew upon your plumes,

And you care

Not a whit for rest or hush ;

But the leaves, the lyric gush,

And the wing-power, and the rush

Of the air.

IX.

So I dare not woo you, Sweet,

For a day,

Lest I lose you in a flash,

As I may ;

Did I tell you tender things,

You would shake your sudden wings ;—

You would start from him who sings,

And away.

A DIALOGUE FROM PLATO.

' Le temps le mieux employé est celui qu'on perd.'

CLAUDE TILLIER.

I'D 'read' three hours. Both notes and text

Were fast a mist becoming ;

In bounced a vagrant bee, perplexed,

And filled the room with humming,

Then out. The casement's leafage sways,

And, parted light, discloses

Miss Di., with hat and book,—a maze

Of muslin mixed with roses.

‘You’re reading Greek?’ ‘I am—and you?’

‘O, mine’s a mere romancer!’

‘So Plato is.’ ‘Then read him—do;

And I’ll read mine in answer.’

I read. ‘My Plato (Plato, too,—

That wisdom thus should harden!)

Declares “blue eyes look doubly blue

Beneath a Dolly Varden.”’

She smiled. ‘My book in turn avers

(No author’s name is stated)

That sometimes those Philosophers

Are sadly mis-translated.’

‘But hear,—the next’s in stronger style :

The Cynic School asserted

That two red lips which part and smile

May not be controverted!’

She smiled once more—‘ My book, I find,
Observes some modern doctors
Would make the Cynics out a kind
Of album-verse concoctors.’

Then I—‘ Why not ? “ Ephesian law,
No less than time’s tradition,
Enjoined fair speech on all who saw
DIANA’s apparition.” ’

She blushed—this time. ‘ If Plato’s page
No wiser precept teaches,
Then I’d renounce that doubtful sage,
And walk to Burnham-beeches.’

‘ Agreed,’ I said. ‘ For Socrates
(I find he too is talking)
Thinks Learning can’t remain at ease
While Beauty goes a-walking.’

She read no more. I leapt the sill :

The sequel 's scarce essential—

Nay, more than this, I hold it still

Profoundly confidential.

AN AUTUMN IDYLL.

' Sweet Themmes ! runne softly, till I end my song.'—SPENSER.

LAWRENCE.      FRANK.      JACK.

LAWRENCE.

HERE, where the beech-nuts drop among the grasses,

Push the boat in, and throw the rope ashore.

Jack, hand me out the claret and the glasses ;

Here let us sit. We landed here before.

FRANK.

Jack's undecided. Say, formose puer,

Bent in a dream above the ' water wan,'

Shall we row higher, for the reeds are fewer,

There by the pollards, where you see the swan ?

JACK.

Hist ! That's a pike. Look—nose against the river,

Gaunt as a wolf,—the sly old privateer !

Enter a gudgeon. Snap,—a gulp, a shiver ;—

Exit the gudgeon. Let us anchor here.

FRANK (in the grass).

Jove, what a day ! Black Care upon the crupper

Nods at his post, and slumbers in the sun ;

Half of Theocritus, with a touch of Tupper,

Churns in my head. The frenzy has begun !

LAWRENCE.

Sing to us then. Damoetas in a choker,

Much out of tune, will edify the rooks.

FRANK.

Sing you again. So musical a croaker

Surely will draw the fish upon the hooks.

JACK.

Sing while you may. The beard of manhood still is Faint on your cheeks, but I, alas ! am old.
Doubtless you yet believe in Amaryllis ;—
Sing me of Her, whose name may not be told.

FRANK.

Listen, O Thames ! His budding beard is ripen,
Say—by a week. Well, Lawrence, shall we sing ?

LAWRENCE.

Yes, if you will. But ere I play the piper,
Let him declare the prize he has to bring.

JACK.

Hear then, my Shepherds. Lo, to him accounted
First in the song, a Pipe I will impart ;—
This, my Belovèd, marvellously mounted,
Amber and foam,—a miracle of art.

LAWRENCE.

Lordly the gift. O Muse of many numbers
Grant me a soft alliterative song !

FRANK.

Me too, O Muse ! And when the Umpire slumbers,
Sting him with gnats a summer evening long.

LAWRENCE.

Not in a cot, begarlanded of spiders,
Not where the brook traditionally purls,—
No, in the Row, supreme among the riders,
Seek I the gem,—the paragon of girls.

FRANK.

Not in the waste of column and of coping,
Not in the sham and stucco of a square,—
No, on a June-lawn, to the water sloping,
Stands she I honour, beautifully fair.

LAWRENCE.

Dark-haired is mine, with splendid tresses plaited
Back from the brows, imperially curled ;
Calm as a grand, far-looking Caryatid,
Holding the roof that covers in a world.

FRANK.

Dark-haired is mine, with breezy ripples swinging
Loose as a vine-branch blowing in the morn ;
Eyes like the morning, mouth for ever singing,
Blithe as a bird, new risen from the corn.

LAWRENCE.

Best is the song with music interwoven :
Mine's a musician,—musical at heart,—
Throbs to the gathered grieving of Beethoven,
Sways to the light coquetting of Mozart.

FRANK.

Best? You should hear mine trilling out a ballad,
Queen at a pic-nic, leader of the glees,
Not too divine to toss you up a salad,
Great in Sir Roger danced among the trees.

LAWRENCE.

Ah, when the thick night flares with dropping torches,
Ah, when the crush-room empties of the swarm,
Pleasant the hand that, in the gusty porches,
Light as a snow-flake, settles on your arm.

FRANK.

Better the twilight and the cheery chatting,—
Better the dim, forgotten garden-seat,
Where one may lie, and watch the fingers tatting,
Lounging with Bran or Bevis at her feet.

LAWRENCE.

All worship mine. Her purity doth hedge her
Round with so delicate divinity, that men,
Stained to the soul with money-bag and ledger,
Bend to the goddess, manifest again.

FRANK.

None worship mine. But some, I fancy, love her,—
Cynics to boot. I know the children run,
Seeing her come, for naught that I discover,
Save that she brings the summer and the sun.

LAWRENCE.

Mine is a Lady, beautiful and queenly,
Crowned with a sweet, continual control,
Grandly forbearing, lifting life serenely
E'en to her own nobility of soul.

FRANK.

Mine is a Woman, kindly beyond measure,
Fearless in praising, faltering in blame ;
Simply devoted to other people's pleasure,—
Jack's sister Florence,—now you know her name.

LAWRENCE.

'Jack's sister Florence !' Never, Francis, never.
Jack, do you hear ? Why, it was she I meant.
She like the country ! Ah, she's far too clever—

FRANK.

There you are wrong. I know her down in Kent.

LAWRENCE.

You'll get a sunstroke, standing with your head bare.
Sorry to differ. Jack,—the word's with you.

FRANK.

How is it, Umpire? Though the motto's threadbare,
'Cælum, non animum'—is, I take it, true.

JACK.

'Souvent femme varie,' as a rule, is truer;
Flattered, I'm sure,—but both of you romance.
Happy to further suit of either wooer,
Merely observing—you haven't got a chance.

LAWRENCE.

Yes. But the Pipe—

FRANK.

The Pipe is what we care for,—

Well, in this case, I scarcely need explain,
Judgment of mine were indiscreet, and therefore,—
Peace to you both. The Pipe I shall retain.

A GARDEN IDYLL.

A LADY.

A POET.

THE LADY.

I.

SIR POET, ere you crossed the lawn
    (If it was wrong to watch you, pardon),
Behind this weeping birch withdrawn,
    I watched you saunter round the garden.
I saw you bend beside the phlox,
    Pluck, as you passed, a sprig of myrtle,
Review my well-ranged hollyhocks,
    Smile at the fountain's slender spurtle ;

II.

You paused beneath the cherry-tree,
Where my marauder thrush was singing,
Peered at the bee-hives curiously,
And narrowly escaped a stinging ;
And then—you see I watched—you passed
Down the espalier walk that reaches
Out to the western wall, and last
Dropped on the seat before the peaches.

III.

What was your thought ? You waited long.
Sublime or graceful,—grave,—satiric ?
A Morris Greek-and-Gothic song ?
A tender Tennysonian lyric ?
Tell me. That garden-seat shall be,
So long as speech renown disperses,
Illustrious as the spot where he—
The gifted Blank—composed his verses.

THE POET.

IV.

Madam,—whose uncensorious eye
Grows gracious over certain pages,
Wherein the Jester's maxims lie,
It may be, thicker than the Sage's—
I hear but to obey, and could
Mere wish of mine the pleasure do you,
Some verse as whimsical as Hood,—
As gay as Praed,—should answer to you.

V.

But, though the common voice proclaims
Our only serious vocation
Confined to giving nothings names,
And dreams a 'local habitation ;'
Believe me, there are tuneless days,
When neither marble, brass, nor vellum,
Would profit much by any lays
That haunt the poet's cerebellum.

VI.

More empty things, I fear, than rhymes,
    More idle things than songs, absorb it ;
The ' finely-frenzied ' eye, at times,
    Reposes mildly in its orbit ;
And, painful truth, at times, to him,
    Whose jog-trot thought is nowise restive,
' A primrose by a river's brim '
    Is absolutely unsuggestive.

VII.

The fickle Muse ! As ladies will,
    She sometimes wearies of her wooer ;
A goddess, yet a woman still,
    She flies the more that we pursue her ;
In short, with worst as well as best,
    Five months in six, your hapless poet
Is just as prosy as the rest,
    But cannot comfortably show it.

VIII.

You thought, no doubt, the garden-scent
    Brings back some brief-winged bright sensation
Of love that came and love that went,—
    Some fragrance of a lost flirtation,
Born when the cuckoo changes song,
    Dead ere the apple's red is on it,
That should have been an epic long,
    Yet scarcely served to fill a sonnet.

IX.

Or else you thought,—the murmuring noon,
    He turns it to a lyric sweeter,
With birds that gossip in the tune,
    And windy bough-swing in the metre ;
Or else the zigzag fruit-tree arms
    Recall some dream of harp-prest bosoms,
Round singing mouths, and chanted charms,
    And mediæval orchard blossoms,—

X.

Quite à la mode. Alas for prose,—
My vagrant fancies only rambled
Back to the red-walled Rectory close,
Where first my graceless boyhood gamboled,
Climbed on the dial, teased the fish, .
And chased the kitten round the beeches,
Till widening instincts made me wish
For certain slowly-ripening peaches.

XI.

Three peaches. Not the Graces three
Had more equality of beauty :
I would not look, yet went to see ;
I wrestled with Desire and Duty ;
I felt the pangs of those who feel
The Laws of Property beset them ;
The conflict made my reason reel,
And, half-abstractedly, I ate them ;—

XII.

Or Two of them. Forthwith Despair—
More keen that one of these was rotten—
Moved me to seek some forest lair
Where I might hide and dwell forgotten,
Attired in skins, by berries stained,
Absolved from brushes and ablution ;—
But, ere my sylvan haunt was gained,
Fate gave me up to execution.

XIII.

I saw it all but now. The grin
That gnarled old Gardener Sandy's features ;
My father, scholar-like and thin,
Unroused, the tenderest of creatures ;
I saw—ah me—I saw again
My dear and deprecating mother ;
And then, remembering the cane,
Regretted—that I'd left the other.

TU QUOQUE.

AN IDYLL IN THE CONSERVATORY.

*'—romprons-nous,
Ou ne romprons-nous pas ?'*
LE DÉPIT AMOUREUX.

NELLIE.

If I were you, when ladies at the play, sir,
    Beckon and nod, a melodrama through,
I would not turn abstractedly away, sir,
    If I were you !

FRANK.

If I were you, when persons I affected,
    Wait for three hours to take me down to Kew,
I would, at least, pretend I recollected,
    If I were you !

NELLIE.

If I were you, when ladies are so lavish,
Sir, as to keep me every waltz but two,
I would not dance with odious Miss M'Tavish,
If I were you !

FRANK.

If I were you, who vow you cannot suffer
Whiff of the best,—the mildest ‘honey-dew,’
I would not dance with smoke-consuming Puffer,
If I were you !

NELLIE.

If I were you, I would not, sir, be bitter,
Even to write the ‘Cynical Review ;’—

FRANK.

No, I should doubtless find flirtation fitter,
If I were you !

NELLIE.

Really ! You would ? Why, Frank, you're quite delightful,—

Hot as Othello, and as black of hue ;
Borrow my fan. I would not look so frightful,
If I were you !

FRANK.

'It is the cause.' I mean your chaperon is Bringing some well-curled juvenile. Adieu !
I shall retire. I'd spare that poor Adonis,
If I were you !

NELLIE.

Go, if you will. At once ! And by express, sir !
Where shall it be ? To China—or Peru ?
Go. I should leave inquirers my address, sir,
If I were you !

FRANK.

No,—I remain. To stay and fight a duel

Seems, on the whole, the proper thing to do—

Ah, you are strong,—I would not then be cruel,

If I were you !

NELLIE.

One does not like one's feelings to be doubted,—

FRANK.

One does not like one's friends to misconstrue,—

NELLIE.

If I confess that I a wee-bit pouted ?—

FRANK.

I should admit that I was piqué, too.

NELLIE.

Ask me to dance. I'd say no more about it,

If I were you !

[Waltz—Exeunt.]

‘LE ROMAN DE LA ROSE.’

POOR Rose ! I lift you from the street—

Far better I should own you

Than you should lie for random feet

Where careless hands have thrown you.

Poor pinky petals, crushed and torn !

Did heartless Mayfair use you,

Then cast you forth to lie forlorn,

For chariot-wheels to bruise you ?

I saw you last in Edith's hair.

Rose, you would scarce discover
That I she passed upon the stair
Was Edith's favoured lover,

A month—'a little month'—ago—

O theme for moral writer!—
'Twixt you and me, my Rose, you know,
She might have been politer ;

But let that pass. She gave you then—

Behind the oleander—
To one, perhaps, of all the men,
Who best could understand her,—

Cyril, that, duly flattered, took,
As only Cyril's able,
With just the same Arcadian look
He used, last night, for Mabel ;

Then, having waltzed till every star

Had paled away in morning,

Lit up his cynical cigar,

And tossed you downward, scorning.

Kismet, my Rose ! Revenge is sweet,—

She made my heart-strings quiver ;

And yet—You shan’t lie in the street

I’ll drop you in the River.

AD ROSAM.

*'Mitte sectari ROSA quo locorum
Sera moretur.'*

HOR. I. 38.

I.

I HAD a vacant dwelling—
Where situated, I,
As nought can serve the telling,
Decline to specify ;—
Enough 'twas neither haunted,
Entailed, nor out of date ;
I put up 'Tenant Wanted,'
And left the rest to Fate.

II.

Then, Rose, you passed the window,—

I see you passing yet,—

Ah, what could I within do,

When, Rose, our glances met !

You snared me, Rose, with ribbons,

Your rose-mouth made me thrall,

Brief—briefer far than Gibbon's,

Was my ' Decline and Fall.'

III.

I heard the summons spoken

That all hear—king and clown :

You smiled—the ice was broken ;

You stopped—the bill was down.

How blind we are ! It never Occurred to me to seek

If you had come for ever,

Or only for a week.

IV.

The words your voice neglected,
Seemed written in your eyes ;
The thought your heart protected,
Your cheek told, missal-wise ;—
I read the rubric plainly
As any Expert could ;
In short, we dreamed,—insanely,
As only lovers should.

V.

I broke the tall Ænone,
That then my chambers graced,
Because she seemed 'too bony,'
To suit your purist taste ;
And you, without vexation,
May certainly confess
Some graceful approbation,
Designed à mon adresse.

VI.

You liked me then, carina,—
    You liked me then, I think ;
For your sake gall had been a
    Mere tonic-cup to drink ;
For your sake, bonds were trivial,
    The rack, a tour-de-force ;
And banishment, convivial,—
    You coming too, of course.

VII.

Then, Rose, a word in jest meant
    Would throw you in a state
That no well-timed investment
    Could quite alleviate ;
Beyond a Paris trousseau
    You prized my smile, I know,
I, yours—ah, more than Rousseau
    The lip of d' Houdetot.

VIII.

Then, Rose,—But why pursue it ?

When Fate begins to frown

Best write the final 'fuit,'

And gulp the physic down.

And yet,—and yet, that only,

The song should end with this :—

You left me,—left me lonely,

Rosa mutabilis !

IX.

Left me, with Time for Mentor,

(A dreary tête-à-tête !)

To pen my 'Last Lament,' or

Extemporize to Fate,

In blankest verse disclosing

My bitterness of mind,—

Which is, I learn, composing

In cases of the kind.

x.

No, Rose. Though you refuse me,

Culture the pang prevents ;

'I am not made'—excuse me—

'Of so slight elements ;'

I leave to common lovers

The hemlock or the hood ;

My rarer soul recovers

In dreams of public good.

xi.

The Roses of this nation—

Or so I understand

From careful computation—

Exceed the gross demand ;

And, therefore, in civility

To maids that can't be matched,

No man of sensibility

Should linger unattached.

XII.

So, without further fashion—

A modern Curtius,

Plunging, from pure compassion,

To aid the overplus,—

I sit down, sad—not daunted,

And, in my weeds, begin

A new card—‘Tenant Wanted ;

Particulars within.’

THE LOVE-LETTER.

'Fai vu les mœurs de mon temps, et j'ai publié cette lettre.'

LA NOUVELLE HÉLOÏSE.

If this should fail, why then I scarcely know

What could succeed. Here's brilliancy (and banter), :

Byron ad lib., a chapter of Rousseau ;—

If this should fail, then tempora mutantur ;

Style's out of date, and love, as a profession,

Acquires no aid from beauty of expression.

‘The men who think as I, I fear, are few,’
    (Cynics would say ’twere well if they were fewer) ;
‘I am not what I seem,’—(indeed, ’tis true ;
    Though, as a sentiment, it might be newer) ;
‘Mine is a soul whose deeper feelings lie
More deep than words ’—(as these exemplify).

‘I will not say when first your beauty’s sun
    Illumed my life,’—(it needs imagination) ;
‘For me to see you and to love were one,’—
    (This will account for some precipitation) ;
‘Let it suffice that worship more devoted
Ne’er throbb’d,’ et cætera. The rest is quoted.

‘If Love can look with all-prophetic eye,’—
    (Ah, if he could, how many would be single!),
‘If truly spirit unto spirit cry,’—
    (The ears of some most terribly must tingle !)

‘Then I have dreamed you will not turn your face.’

This next, I think, is more than commonplace.

‘Why should we speak, if Love, interpreting,

Forestall the speech with favour found before ?

Why should we plead ?—it were an idle thing,

If Love himself be Love’s ambassador !’

Blot, as I live. Shall we erase it ? No ;—

’Twill show we write currente calamo.

‘My fate,—my fortune, I commit to you,—

(In point of fact, the latter’s not extensive) ;

‘Without you I am poor indeed,’—(strike through,

’Tis true but crude—’twould make her apprehensive) ;

‘My life is yours—I lay it at your feet,’

(Having no choice but Hymen or the Fleet).

‘ Give me the right to stand within the shrine,
Where never yet my faltering feet intruded ;
Give me the right to call you wholly mine,’—
(That is, Consols and Three per Cents included) ;
‘ To guard your rest from every care that cankers,—
To keep your life,’—(and balance at your banker’s).

‘ Compel me not to long for your reply ;
Suspense makes havoc with the mind’—(and muscles) ;
‘ Winged Hope takes flight,’—(which means that I must fly,
Default of funds, to Paris or to Brussels) ;
‘ I cannot wait ! My own, my queen—Priscilla !
Write by return.’ And now for a Manila !

‘ Miss Blank,’ at ‘ Blank.’ Jemima, let it go,
And I, meanwhile, will idle with ‘ Sir Walter ; ’

Stay, let me keep the first rough copy, though—

'Twill serve again. There's but the name to alter,
And Love, that needs, must knock at every portal, .

In formâ pauperis. We are but mortal !

A VIRTUOSO.

I.

BE seated, pray. 'A grave appeal' ?
The sufferers by the war, of course ;
Ah, what a sight for us who feel,—
This monstrous mélodrame of Force !
We, Sir, we connoisseurs, should know,
On whom its heaviest burden falls ;
Collections shattered at a blow,
Museums turned to hospitals !

II.

‘And worse,’ you say ; ‘the wide distress !’

Alas, ’tis true distress exists,

Though, let me add, our worthy Press

Have no mean skill as colourists ;—

Speaking of colour, next your seat

There hangs a sketch from Vernet’s hand ;

Some Moscow fancy, incomplete,

Yet not indifferently planned ;

III.

Note specially the gray old Guard,

Who tears his tattered coat to wrap

A closer bandage round the scarred

And frozen comrade in his lap ;—

But, as regards the present war,—

Now don’t you think our pride of pence

Goes—may I say it ?—somewhat far

For objects of benevolence ?

IV.

You hesitate. For my part, I—

Though ranking Paris next to Rome,
Æsthetically—still reply

That ‘Charity begins at Home.’

The words remind me. Did you catch

My so-named ‘Hunt’? The girl’s a gem ;
And look how those lean rascals snatch
The pile of scraps she brings to them !

V.

‘But your appeal’s for home,’ you say,

For home, and English poor ! Indeed !

I thought Philanthropy to-day

Was blind to mere domestic need—

However sore—Yet though one grants

That home should have the foremost claims,

At least these Continental wants

Assume intelligible names ;

VI.

While here with us—Ah ! who could hope
To verify the varied pleas,
Or from his private means to cope
With all our shrill necessities !
Impossible ! One might as well
Attempt comparison of creeds ;
Or fill that huge Malayan shell
With these half-dozen Indian beads.

VII.

Moreover, add that every one
So well exalts his pet distress,
'Tis—Give to all, or give to none,
If you'd avoid invidiousness.
Your case, I feel, is sad as A.'s,
The same applies to B.'s and C.'s ;
By my selection I should raise
An alphabet of rivalries ;

VIII.

And life is short,—I see you look
At yonder dish, a priceless bit ;
You 'll find it etched in Jacquemart's book,
They say that Raphael painted it ;—
And life is short, you understand ;
So, if I only hold you out
An open though an empty hand,
Why, you 'll forgive me, I 've no doubt.

IX.

Nay, do not rise. You seem amused ;
One can but be consistent, Sir !
'Twas on these grounds I just refused
Some gushing lady-almoner,—
Believe me, on these very grounds.
Good-bye, then. Ah, a rarity !
That cost me quite three hundred pounds,—
That Dürer figure,—' Charity.'

LAISSEZ FAIRE.

*'Prophete rechts, Prophete links,
Das Weltkind in der Mitten.'*

GOETHE'S Diné zu Coblenz.

To left, here 's B., half-Communist,
Who talks a chastened treason,
And C., a something-else in ist,
Harangues, to right, on Reason.

B., from his 'tribune,' fulminates
At Throne and Constitution,
Nay, with the walnuts, advocates
Reform by revolution

While C.'s peculiar coterie
Have now in full rehearsal
Some patent new Philosophy
To make doubt universal.

And yet—why not? If zealots burn,
Their zeal has not affected
My taste for salmon and Sauterne,
Or I might have objected :—

Friend B., the argument you choose
Has been by France refuted ;
And C., mon cher, your novel views
Are just Tom Paine, diluted ;

There 's but one creed,—that 's Laissez faire ;
Behold its mild apostle !
My dear, declamatory pair,
Although you shout and jostle,

Not your ephemeral hands, nor mine,
Times' Gordian knots shall sunder,—
Will. laid three casks of this old wine :
Who 'll drink the last, I wonder ?

A LEGACY.

AH, Postumus, we all must go :

This keen North-Easter nips my shoulder ;
My strength begins to fail ; I know

You find me older ;

I've made my Will. Dear, faithful friend—

My Muse's friend and not my purse's !
Who still would hear and still commend
My tedious verses,

How will you live—of these deprived?

I've learned your candid soul. The venal,—
The sordid friend had scarce survived
A test so penal;

But you—Nay, nay, 'tis so. The rest
Are not as you : you hide your merit ;
You, more than all, deserve the best
True friends inherit ;—

Not gold—that hearts like yours despise ;
Not ' spacious dirt ' (your own expression),
No ; but the rarer, dearer prize—
The life's confession !

You catch my thought? What? Can't you guess?
You, you alone, admired my Cantos ;—
I've left you, P., my whole MS.,
In three portmanteaus !

TO Q. H. F.

SUGGESTED BY A CHAPTER IN THEODORE MARTIN'S

'HORACE,'

( 'ANCIENT CLASSICS FOR ENGLISH READERS.' )

I.

' HORATIUS FLACCUS, B.C. 8,'

There 's not a doubt about the date,—

    You 're dead and buried :

As you remarked, the seasons roll ;

And 'cross the Styx full many a soul

    Has Charon ferried,

Since, mourned of men and Muses nine,

They laid you on the Esquiline.

II.

And that was centuries ago !
You 'd think we 'd learned enough, I know,
    To help refine us,
Since last you trod the Sacred Street,
And tacked from mortal fear to meet
    The bore Crispinus ;
Or, by your cold Digentia, set
The web of winter birding-net.

III.

Ours is so far-advanced an age !
Sensation tales, a classic stage,
    Commodious villas !
We boast high art, an Albert Hall,
Australian meats, and men who call
    Their sires gorillas !
We have a thousand things, you see,
Not dreamt in your philosophy.

IV.

And yet, how strange ! Our 'world,' to-day,
Tried in the scale, would scarce outweigh
Your Roman cronies ;
Walk in the Park—you 'll seldom fail
To find a Sybaris on the rail
By Lydia's ponies,
Or hap on Barrus, wigged and stayed,
Ogling some unsuspecting maid.

V.

The great Gargilius, then, behold !
His 'long-bow' hunting tales of old
Are now but duller ;
Fair Neobule too ! Is not
One Hebrus here—from Aldershot ?
Aha, you colour !
Be wise. There old Canidia sits ;
No doubt she 's tearing you to bits.

VI.

And look, dyspeptic, brave, and kind,

Comes dear Mæcenas, half behind

Terentia's skirting ;

Here's Pyrrha, 'golden-haired' at will ;

Prig Damasippus, preaching still ;

Asterie flirting,—

Radiant, of course. We'll make her black,—

Ask her when Gyges' ship comes back.

VII.

So with the rest. Who will may trace

Behind the new each elder face

Defined as clearly ;

Science proceeds, and man stands still ;

Our 'world' to-day's as good or ill,—

As cultured (nearly),

As yours was, Horace ! You alone,

Unmatched, unmet, we have not known.

A G A G E D'A M O U R.

(HORACE, III. 8.)

*' Martiis cælebs quid agam Kalendis,
——miraris ?'*

I.

CHARLES,—for it seems you wish to know,—
You wonder what could scare me so,
And why, in this long-locked bureau,
    With trembling fingers,—
With tragic air, I now replace
This ancient web of yellow lace,
Among whose faded folds the trace
    Of perfume lingers.

II.

Friend of my youth, severe as true,
I guess the train your thoughts pursue ;
But this my state is nowise due
    To indigestion ;
I had forgotten it was there,
A scarf that Some-one used to wear.
Hinc illæ lachrimæ,—so spare
    Your cynic question.

III.

Some-one who is not girlish now,
And wed long since. We meet and bow ;
I don't suppose our broken vow
    Affects us keenly ;
Yet, trifling though my act appears,
Your Sternes would make it ground for tears ;—
One can't disturb the dust of years,
    And smile serenely.

IV.

' My golden locks ' are gray and chill,
For hers,—let them be sacred still ;
But yet, I own, a boyish thrill
                    Went dancing through me,
Charles, when I held yon yellow lace ;
For, from its dusty hiding-place,
Peeped out an arch, ingenuous face
                    That beckoned to me.

V.

We shut our heart up, now-a-days,
Like some old music-box that plays
Unfashionable airs that raise
                    Derisive pity ;
Alas,—a nothing starts the spring ;
And lo, the sentimental thing
At once commences quavering
                    Its lover's ditty.

VI.

Laugh, if you like. The boy in me,—
The boy that was,—revived to see
The fresh young smile that shone when she,
Of old, was tender.

Once more we trod the Golden Way,—
That mother you saw yesterday,
And I, whom none can well portray
As young, or slender.

VII.

She twirled the flimsy scarf about
Her pretty head, and stepping out,
Slipped arm in mine, with half a pout
Of childish pleasure.
Where we were bound no mortal knows,
For then you plunged in Ireland's woes,
And brought me blankly back to prose
And Gladstone's measure.

VIII.

Well, well, the wisest bend to Fate.

My brown old books around me wait,

My pipe still holds, unconfiscate,

Its wonted station.

Pass me the wine. To Those that keep

The bachelor's secluded sleep

Peaceful, inviolate, and deep,

I pour libation.

OUTWARD BOUND.

(HORACE, III. 7.)

*' Quid fles, Asterie, quem tibi candiai
Primo restituent vere Favonii—
Gygen ? '*

I.

COME, Laura, patience. Time and spring
Your absent Arthur back shall bring,
Enriched with many an Indian thing,
Once more to woo you ;
Him, neither wind nor wave can check
Who, cramped beneath the ' Simla's ' deck,
Still constant, though with stiffened neck,
Makes verses to you.

II.

Would it were wave and wind alone !

The terrors of the torrid zone,

The indiscriminate cyclone,

A man might parry ;

But only faith, or 'triple brass,'

Can help the 'outward-bound' to pass

Safe through that eastward-faring class

Who sail to marry.

III.

For him fond mothers, stout and fair,

Ascend the tortuous cabin stair

Only to hold around his chair

Insidious sessions ;

For him the eyes of daughters droop

Across the plate of handed soup,

Suggesting seats upon the poop,

And soft confessions.

IV.

Nor are these all his pains, nor most.
Romancing captains cease to boast—
Loud majors leave their whist—to roast
    The youthful griffin ;
All, all with pleased persistence show
His fate,—‘remote, unfriended, slow,’—
His ‘melancholy’ bungalow,—
    His lonely tiffin.

V.

In vain. Let doubts assail the weak ;
Unmoved and calm as ‘Adam’s Peak,’
Your ‘blameless Arthur’ hears them speak
    Of woes that wait him ;
Nought can subdue his soul secure ;
‘Arthur will come again,’ be sure,
Though matron shrewd and maid mature
    Conspire to mate him.

VI.

But, Laura, on your side, forbear
To greet with too impressed an air
A certain youth with chesnut hair,—

A youth unstable ;

Albeit none more skilled can guide
The frail canoe on Thamís tide,
Or, trimmer-footed, lighter glide

Through ‘ Guards ’ or ‘ Mabel.’

VII.

Be warned in time. Without a trace
Of acquiescence on your face,
Hear, in the waltz’s breathing space,

His airy patter ;

Avoid the confidential nook ;
If, when you sing, you find his look
Grow tender, close your music-book,

And end the matter.

TO 'LYDIA LANGUISH.'

' Il me faut des émotions.'

BLANCHE AMORY.

I.

You ask me, Lydia, ' whether I,
If you refuse my suit, shall die.'
(Now pray don't let this hurt you) ;
Although the time be out of joint,
I should not think a bodkin's point
The sole resource of virtue ;
Nor shall I, though your mood endure,
Attempt a final Water-cure
Except against my wishes ;

For I respectfully decline
To dignify the Serpentine,
And make hors-d'œuvres for fishes :
But, if you ask me whether I
Composedly can go,
Without a look, without a sigh,
Why, then I answer—No.

II.

'You are assured,' you sadly say
(If in this most considerate way
To treat my suit your will is),
That I shall 'quickly find as fair
Some new Neæra's tangled hair—
Some easier Amaryllis.'
I cannot promise to be cold
If smiles are kind as yours of old
On lips of later beauties ;

Nor can I hope to quite forget
The homage that is Nature's debt,
    While man has social duties ;
But, if you ask shall I prefer
    To you I honour so
A somewhat visionary Her,
    I answer truly—No.

III.

You fear, you frankly add, 'to find
In me too late the altered mind
    That altering Time estranges.'
To this I make response that we
(As physiologists agree),
    Must have septennial changes ;
This is a thing beyond control,
And it were best upon the whole
    To try and find out whether

We could not, by some means, arrange
This not-to-be-avoided change
So as to change together :
But, had you asked me to allow
That you could ever grow
Less amiable than you are now,— Emphatically—No.

IV.

But—to be serious—if you care
To know how I shall really bear
This much-discussed rejection,
I answer you. As feeling men
Behave, in best romances, when
You outrage their affection ;—
With that gesticulatory woe,
By which, as melodramas show,
Despair is indicated ;

Enforced by all the liquid grief
Which hugest pocket-handkerchief
Has ever simulated ;
And when, arrived so far, you say
In tragic accents 'Go,'
Then, Lydia, then—I still shall stay,
And firmly answer No.

GROWING GRAY.

' On a l'âge de son cœur.'

A. D'HOUDETOT.

A LITTLE more toward the light ;—
Me miserable ! Here's one that's white ;
And one that's turning ;
Adieu to song and ' salad days ;'
My muse, let's go at once to Jay's,
And order mourning.

We must reform our rhymes, my Dear,—
Renounce the gay for the severe,—
Be grave, not witty ;

We have, no more, the right to find
That Pyrrha's hair is neatly twined,—
That Chloe's pretty.

Young Love's for us a farce that's played ;
Light canzonet and serenade
No more may tempt us ;
Gray hairs but ill accord with dreams ;
From aught but sour didactic themes
Our years exempt us.

'A la bonne heure !' You fancy so ?
You think for one white streak we grow
At once satiric ?
A fiddlestick ! Each hair's a string
To which our greybeard Muse shall sing
A younger lyric.

The heart's still sound. Shall 'cakes and ale'
Grow rare to youth because we rail
At schoolboy dishes?
Perish the thought! 'Tis ours to sing
When neither Time nor Tide can bring Belief with wishes.

LOVE IN WINTER.

BETWEEN the berried holly-bush
The Blackbird whistled to the Thrush :
' Which way did bright-eyed Bella go ?
Look, Speckle-breast, across the snow,—
Are those her dainty tracks I see,
That wind toward the shrubbery ?'

The Thristle pecked the berries still.
' No need for looking, Yellow-bill ;
Young Frank was there an hour ago,
Half-frozen, waiting in the snow ;
His callow beard was white with rime,—
Tchuck,—' tis a merry pairing-time !'

‘What would you?’ twittered in the Wren ;
‘These are the reckless ways of men.
I watched them bill and coo as though
They thought the sign of Spring was snow ;
If men but timed their loves as we,
’Twould save this inconsistency.’

‘Nay, Gossip,’ chirped the Robin, ‘nay ;
I like their unreflective way.
Besides, I heard enough to show
Their love is proof against the snow :—
Why wait, he said, why wait for May,
When love can warm a winter’s day ?’

POT-POURRI.

‘Si jeunesse savait! —’

I PLUNGE my hand among the leaves :

(An alien touch but dust perceives,

Nought else supposes ;)

For me those fragrant ruins raise

Clear memory of the vanished days

When they were roses.

‘ If youth but knew ! ’ Ah, ‘ if,’ in truth —

I can recall with what gay youth,

To what light chorus,

Unsobered yet by time or change,

We roamed the many-gabled Grange,

All life before us ;

Braved the old clock-tower's dust and damp
To catch the dim Arthurian camp
    In misty distance ;
Peered at the still-room's sacred stores,
Or rapped at walls for sliding doors
    Of feigned existence.

Vogue la galère ! What need for cares !
The hot sun parched the old parterres
    And 'flowerful closes ;'
We roused the rooks with rounds and glees,
Played hide-and-seek behind the trees,—
    Then plucked these roses.

Louise was one—light, glib Louise,
So freshly freed from school decrees
    You scarce could stop her ;
And Bell, the Beauty, unsurprised
At fallen locks that scandalized
    Our dear 'Miss Proper : '—

Shy Ruth, all heart and tenderness,
Who wept—like Chaucer's Prioress,
    When Dash was smitten ;
Who blushed before the mildest men,
Yet waxed a very Corday when
    You teased her kitten.

I loved them all. Bell first and best ;
Louise the next—for days of jest,
    Or madcap masking ;
And Ruth, I thought,—why, failing these,
When my High-Mightiness should please,
    She'd come for asking.

Louise was grave when last we met ;
Bell's beauty, like a sun, has set ;
    And Ruth, Heaven bless her,
Ruth that I wooed,—and wooed in vain,
Has gone where neither grief nor pain
    Can now distress her.

DOROTHY.

A REVERIE.

(Suggested by the name upon a Pane.)

SHE then must once have looked, as I
Look now, across the level rye,—
Past Church and Manor-house, and seen,
As now I see, the village green,
The bridge, and Walton's river—she
Whose old-world name was 'Dorothy.'

The swallows must have twittered, too,
Above her head ; the roses blew
Below, no doubt,—and, sure, the South
Crept up the wall and kissed her mouth,—

That wistful mouth, which comes to me
Linked with her name of Dorothy.

What was she like? I picture her
Unmeet for uncouth worshipper ;—
Soft,—pensive,—far too subtly graced
To suit the blunt bucolic taste,
Whose crude perception could but see
‘ Ma’am Fine-airs ’ in ‘ Miss Dorothy.’

How not? She loved, may be, perfume,
Soft textures, lace, a half-lit room ;—
Perchance too candidly preferred
‘ Clarissa ’ to a gossip’s word ;—
And, for the rest, would seem to be
Or proud or dull—this Dorothy.

Poor child—with heart the down-lined nest
Of warmest instincts unconfest,

Soft, callow things that vaguely felt
The breeze caress, the sunlight melt,
But yet, by some obscure decree
Unwinged from birth ;—poor Dorothy !

Not less I dream her mute desire
To ached churl and booby squire,
Now pale, with timorous eyes that filled
At ‘ twice-told tales ’ of foxes killed ;—
Now trembling when slow tongues grew free
’Twixt sport, and Port—and Dorothy !

’Twas then she ’d seek this nook, and find
Its evening landscape balmy-kind ;
And here, where still her gentle name
Lives on the old green glass, would frame
Fond dreams of unfound harmony
’Twixt heart and heart. Poor Dorothy !

L'ENVOI.

These last I spoke. Then Florence said,
Below me,—‘ Dreams? Delusions, Fred !’
Next, with a pause,—she bent the while
Over a rose, with roguish smile—
‘ But how disgusted, sir, you’ll be
To hear I scrawled that “ Dorothy.”’

A CITY FLOWER.

' Il y a des fleurs animées.'

POLITE COLLOQUIALISM.

I.

To and fro in the City I go,
Tired of the ceaseless ebb and flow,
Sick of the crowded mart ;
Tired of the din and rattle of wheels,
Sick of the dust as one who feels
The dust is over his heart.

II.

And again and again, as the sunlight wanes,
I think of the lights in the leafy lanes,
    With the bits of blue between ;
And when about Rimmel's the perfumes play,
I smell no odour of ' Ess Bouquet,'
    But violets hid in the green ;
And I love—how I love !—the plants that fill
The pots on my dust-dry window-sill,—
    A sensitive sickly crop,—
But a flower that charms me more, I think,
Than cowslip, or crocus, or rose, or pink,
    Blooms—in a milliner's shop.

III.

Hazel eyes that wickedly peep,
Flash, abash, and suddenly sleep
    Under the lids drawn in ;

Ripple of hair that rioteth out,
Mouth with a half-born smile and a pout,
And a baby breadth of chin ;
Hands that light as the lighting bird,
On the bloom-bent bough, and the bough is stirred
With a delicate ecstasy ;
Fingers tipped with a roseate flush,
Flicking and flirting a feathery brush
Over the papery bonnetry ;—
Till the gauzy rose begins to glow,
And the gauzy hyacinths break and blow,
And the dusty grape grows red ;
And the flaunting grasses seem to say,
'Do we look like ornaments—tell us, we pray—
Fit for a lady's head ?'
And the butterfly wakes to a wiry life,
Like an elderly gentleman taking a wife,
Knowing he must be gay ;

And all the bonnets nid-noddle about,
Like chattering chaperons set at a rout,
Quarrelling over their play.

IV.

How can I otherwise choose than look
At the beautiful face like a beautiful book,
And learn a tiny part?
So I feel somehow that every day
Some flake of the dust is brushed away
That had settled over my heart.

INCOGNITA.

I.

JUST for a space that I met her—

Just for a day in the train !

It began when she feared it would wet her,

That tiniest spurtle of rain :

So we tucked a great rug in the sashes,

And carefully padded the pane ;

And I sorrow in sackcloth and ashes,

Longing to do it again !

II.

Then it grew when she begged me to reach her

A dressing-case under the seat ;

She was ‘ really so tiny a creature,

That she needed a stool for her feet ! ’

Which was promptly arranged to her order

With a care that was even minute,

And a glimpse—of an open-work border,

And a glance—of the fairiest boot.

III.

Then it drooped, and revived at some hovels—

‘ Were they houses for men or for pigs ? ’

Then it shifted to muscular novels,

With a little digression on prigs :

She thought ‘ Wives and Daughters ’ ‘ so jolly ;

‘ Had I read it ? ’ She knew when I had,

Like the rest, I should dote upon ‘ Molly ; ’

And ‘ poor Mrs. Gaskell—how sad ! ’

IV.

‘Like Browning?’ ‘But so-so.’ His proof lay

Too deep for her frivolous mood,

That preferred your mere metrical soufflé

To the stronger poetical food ;

Yet at times he was good—‘as a tonic :’

Was Tennyson writing just now ?

And was this new poet Byronic,

And clever, and naughty, or how ?

V.

Then we trifled with concerts and croquet,

Then she daintily dusted her face ;

Then she sprinkled herself with ‘Ess Bouquet,’

Fished out from the foregoing case ;

And we chattered of Gassier and Grisi,

And voted Aunt Sally a bore ;

Discussed if the tight rope were easy,

Or Chopin much harder than Spohr.

VI.

And oh ! the odd things that she quoted,
    With the prettiest possible look,
And the price of two buns that she noted
    In the prettiest possible book ;
While her talk like a musical rillet
    Flashed on with the hours that flew,
And the carriage, her smile seemed to fill it
    With just enough summer—for Two.

VII.

Till at last in her corner, peeping
    From a nest of rugs and of furs,
With the white shut eyelids sleeping
    On those dangerous looks of hers,
She seemed like a snowdrop breaking,
    Not wholly alive nor dead,
But with one blind impulse making
    To the sounds of the spring overhead ;

VIII.

And I watched in the lamplight's swerving
The shade of the down-dropt lid,
And the lip-line's delicate curving,
Where a slumbering smile lay hid,
Till I longed that, rather than sever,
The train should shriek into space,
And carry us onward—for ever,—
Me and that beautiful face.

IX.

But she suddenly woke in a fidget,
With fears she was 'nearly at home,'
And talk of a certain Aunt Bridget,
Whom I mentally wished—well at Rome ;
Got out at the very next station,
Looking back with a merry Bon Soir,
Adding, too, to my utter vexation,
A surplus, unkind Au Revoir.

X.

So left me to muse on her graces,
To doze and to muse, till I dreamed
That we sailed through the sunniest places
In a glorified galley, it seemed ;
But the cabin was made of a carriage,
And the ocean was Eau-de-Cologne,
And we split on a rock labelled MARRIAGE,
And I woke,—as cold as a stone.

XI.

And that's how I lost her—a jewel—
Incognita—one in a crowd,
Not prudent enough to be cruel,
Not worldly enough to be proud.
It was just a shut lid and its lashes,
Just a few hours in a train,
And I sorrow in sackcloth and ashes
Longing to see her again !

MY LANDLADY.

A SMALL brisk woman, capped with many a bow ;
    ‘ Yes,’ so she says, ‘ and younger, too, than some,’
Who bids me, bustling, ‘ God speed,’ when I go,
    And gives me, rustling, ‘ Welcome ’ when I come.

‘ Ay, sir, ’tis cold,—and freezing hard,—they say ;
    I ’d like to give that hulking brute a hit
Beating his horse in such a shameful way !—
    Step here, sir, till your fire ’s blazed up a bit.’

A musky haunt of lavender and shells,
    Quaint-figured Chinese monsters, toys, and trays—
A life’s collection—where each object tells
    Of fashions gone and half-forgotten ways :—

A glossy screen, where wide-mouth dragons ramp ;

A vexed inscription in a sampler-frame ;

A shade of beads upon a red-capped lamp ;

A child's mug graven with a golden name ;

A pictured ship, with full-blown canvas set ;

A cord, with sea-weed twisted to a wreath,

Circling a silky curl as black as jet,

With yellow writing faded underneath.

Looking, I sink within the shrouded chair,

And note the objects slowly, one by one,

And light at last upon a portrait there,—

Wide-collared, raven-haired. ‘ Yes, ’tis my son ! ’

‘ Where is he ? ’ ‘ Ah, Sir, he is dead—my boy ! ’

Nigh ten long years ago—in ’sixty-three ;

He’s always living in my head—my boy !

He was left drowning in the Southern Sea.

‘ There were two souls washed overboard, they said,
And one the waves brought back ; but he was left.
They saw him place the life-buoy o’er his head ;
The sea was running wildly ;—he was left.

‘ He was a strong, strong swimmer. Do you know,
When the wind whistled yesternight, I cried,
And prayed to God, though ’twas so long ago,
He did not struggle much before he died.

‘ ’Twas his third voyage. That’s the box he brought,—
Or would have brought—my poor deserted boy !
And these the words the agents sent—they thought
That money, perhaps, could make my loss a joy.

‘ Look, Sir, I’ve something here that I prize more :
This is a fragment of the poor lad’s coat,—
That other clutched him as the wave went o’er,
And this stayed in his hand. That ’s what they wrote.

‘ Well, well, ’tis done. My story’s shocking you ;—

Grief is for them that have both time and wealth :

We can’t mourn much, who have much work to do ;

Your fire is bright. Thank God, I have my health !

THE DRAMA OF THE DOCTOR'S WINDOW.

IN THREE ACTS, WITH A PROLOGUE.

*A tedious brief scene of young Pyramus,
And his love Thisbe ; very tragical mirth.*

MIDSUMMER-NIGHT'S DREAM.

PROLOGUE.

I.

‘WELL, I must wait !’ The Doctor’s room,
Where I used this expression,
Wore the severe official gloom
Attached to that profession ;
Rendered severer by a bald
And skinless Gladiator,
Whose raw robustness first appalled
The entering spectator.

II.

No one would call 'The Lancet' gay,—

Few could avoid confessing

That Jones, 'On Muscular Decay,'

Is, as a rule, depressing :

So, leaving both, to change the scene,

I turned toward the shutter,

And peered out vacantly between

A water-butt and gutter.

III.

Below, the Doctor's garden lay,

If thus imagination

May dignify a square of clay

Unused to vegetation,

Filled with a dismal-looking swing—

That brought to mind a gallows—

An empty kennel, mouldering,

And two dyspeptic aloes.

iv.

No sparrow chirped, no daisy sprung,
 About the place deserted ;
 Only across the swing-board hung
 A battered doll, inverted,
 Which sadly seemed to disconcert
 The vagrant cat that scanned it,
 Sniffed doubtfully around the skirt,
 But failed to understand it.

v.

A dreary spot ! And yet, I own,
 Half-hoping that, perchance, it
 Might, in some unknown way, atone
 For Jones and for ' The Lancet,'
 I watched ; and by especial grace,
 Within this stage contracted,
 Saw presently before my face
 A classic story acted.

VI.

Ah, World of ours, are you so gray
And weary, World, of spinning,
That you repeat the tales to-day
You told at the beginning ?
For lo ! the same old myths that made
The early ' stage successes,'
Still ' hold the boards,' and still are played,
' With new effects and dresses.'

VII.

Small, lonely ' three-pair-backs ' behold,
To-day, Alcestis dying ;
To-day, in farthest Polar cold,
Ulysses' bones are lying ;
Still in one's morning ' Times ' one reads
How fell an Indian Hector ;
Still clubs discuss Achilles' steeds,
Briseis' next protector ;—

VIII.

Still Menelaus brings, we see,
    His oft-remanded case on ;
Still somewhere sad Hypsipyle
    Bewails a faithless Jason ;
And here, the Doctor's sill beside,
    Do I not now discover
A Thisbe, whom the walls divide
    From Pyramus, her lover ?

ACT THE FIRST.

IX.

Act I. began.    Some noise had scared
    The cat, that like an arrow
Shot up the wall and disappeared ;
    And then across the narrow,
Unweeded path, a small dark thing,
    Hid by a garden-bonnet,
Passed wearily towards the swing,
    Paused, turned, and climbed upon it.

X.

A child of five, with eyes that were
At least a decade older,
A mournful mouth, and tangled hair
Flung careless round her shoulder,
Dressed in a stiff ill-fitting frock,
Whose black uncomely rigour
Seemed to sardonically mock
The plaintive, slender figure.

XI.

What was it ? Something in the dress
That told the girl unmothered ;
Or was it that the merciless
Black garb of mourning smothered
Life and all light :—but rocking so,
In the dull garden-corner,
The lonely swinger seemed to grow
More piteous and forlorn.

XII.

Then, as I looked, across the wall
Of 'next-door's' garden, that is—
To speak correctly—through its tall
Surmounting fence of lattice,
Peeped a boy's face, with curling hair,
Ripe lips, half-drawn asunder,
And round, bright eyes, that wore a stare
Of frankest childish wonder.

XIII.

Rounder they grew by slow degrees,
Until the swinger, swerving,
Made, all at once, alive to these
Intentest orbs observing,
Gave just one brief, half-uttered cry,
And,—as with gathered kirtle,
Nymphs fly from Pan's head suddenly
Thrust through the budding myrtle,—

XIV.

Fled in dismay. A moment's space,
The eyes looked almost tragic ;
Then, when they caught my watching face,
Vanished as if by magic ;
And, like some sombre thing beguiled
To strange, unwonted laughter,
The gloomy garden having smiled,
Became the gloomier after.

ACT THE SECOND.

XV.

Yes : they were gone, the stage was bare,—
Blank as before ; and therefore,
Sinking within the patient's chair,
Half vexed, I knew not wherefore,
I dozed ; till, startled by some call,
A glance sufficed to show me,
The boy again above the wall,
The girl erect below me.

XVI.

The boy, it seemed, to add a force
To words found unavailing,
Had pushed a striped and spotted horse
Half through the blistered paling,
Where now it stuck, stiff-legged and straight
While he, in exultation,
Chattered some half-articulate
Excited explanation.

XVII.

Meanwhile, the girl, with upturned face,
Stood motionless, and listened ;
The ill-cut frock had gained a grace,
The pale hair almost glistened ;
The figure looked alert and bright,
Buoyant as though some power
Had lifted it, as rain at night
Uplifts a drooping flower.

xviii.

The eyes had lost their listless way,—
The old life, tired and faded,
Had slipped down with the doll that lay
Before her feet, degraded ;
She only, yearning upward, found
In those bright eyes above her
The ghost of some enchanted ground
Where even Nurse would love her.

xix.

Ah, tyrant Time ! you hold the book,
We, sick and sad, begin it ;
You close it fast, if we but look
Pleased for a meagre minute ;
You closed it now, for, out of sight,
Some warning finger beckoned ;
Thus ended Act the Second.

166 The Drama of the Doctor's Window.

ACT THE THIRD.

XX.

Or so it proved. For while I still Believed them gone for ever,
Half-raised above the window sill,
I saw the lattice quiver ;
And lo, once more appeared the head,
Flushed, while the round mouth pouted ;
'Give Tom a kiss,' the red lips said,
In style the most undoubted.

XXI.

The girl came back without a thought ;
Dear Muse of Mayfair, pardon,
If more restraint had not been taught
In this neglected garden ;
For these your code was all too stiff,
So, seeing none dissented,
Their unfeigned faces met as if
Manners were not invented.

XXII.

Then on the scene,—by happy fate,
When lip from lip had parted,
And, therefore, just two seconds late,—
A sharp-faced nurse-maid darted ;
Swooped on the boy, as swoops a kite
Upon a rover chicken,
And bore him sourly off, despite
His well-directed kicking.

XXIII.

The girl stood silent, with a look
Too subtle to unravel,
Then, with a sudden gesture took
The torn doll from the gravel ;
Hid the whole face, with one caress,
Under the garden bonnet,
And, passing in, I saw her press
Kiss after kiss upon it.

168 The Drama of the Doctor's Window.

Exeunt omnes. End of play.

It made the dull room brighter,
The Gladiator almost gay,
And e'en 'The Lancet' lighter.

AN UNFINISHED SONG.

'Cantat Deo qui vivit Deo.'

YES, he was well-nigh gone and near his rest,
The year could not renew him ; nor the cry
Of building nightingales about the nest ;
Nor that soft freshness of the May-wind's sigh,

That fell before the garden scents, and died
Between the ampler leafage of the trees :
All these he knew not, lying open-eyed,
Deep in a dream that was not pain nor ease,

But death not yet. Outside a woman talked—

His wife she was—whose clicking needles sped
To faded phrases of complaint that balked
My rising words of comfort. Overhead,

A cage that hung amid the jasmine stars

Trembled a little, and a blossom dropped.

Then notes came pouring through the wicker bars,

Climbed half a rapid arc of song, and stopped.

‘Is it a thrush?’ I asked. ‘A thrush,’ she said.

‘That was Will’s tune. Will taught him that before
He left the doorway settle for his bed,

Sick as you see, and couldn’t teach him more.

‘He’d bring his Bible here o’ nights, would Will,

Following the light, and whiles when it was dark
And days were warm, he’d sit there whistling still,
Teaching the bird. He whistled like a lark.’

‘Jack! Jack!’ A joyous flutter stirred the cage,
Shaking the blossoms down. The bird began ;
The woman turned again to want and wage,
And in the inner chamber sighed the man.

How clear the song was! Musing as I heard,
My fancies wandered from the droning wife
To sad comparison of man and bird,—
The broken song, the uncompleted life,

That seemed a broken song ; and of the two,
My thought a moment deemed the bird more blest,
That, when the sun shone, sang the notes it knew,
Without desire or knowledge of the rest.

Nay, happier man. For him futurity
Still hides a hope that this his earthly praise
Finds heavenly end, for surely will not He,
Solver of all, above his Flower of Days,

Teach him the song that no one living knows ?

Let the man die, with that half-chant of his,—
What Now discovers not Hereafter shows,
And God will surely teach him more than this.

Again the bird. I turned, and passed along ;

But Time and Death, Eternity and Change,
Talked with me ever, and the climbing song
Rose in my hearing, beautiful and strange.

THE SUNDIAL.

'Tis an old dial, dark with many a stain ;

    In summer crowned with drifting orchard bloom,

Tricked in the autumn with the yellow rain,

    And white in winter like a marble tomb ;

And round about its gray, time-eaten brow

    Lean letters speak—a worn and shattered row :

I am a Shade : a Shadowe too arte thou :

    I marke the Time : saye, Gossip, dost thou see ?

Here would the ringdoves linger, head to head ;
And here the snail a silver course would run,
Beating old Time ; and here the peacock spread
His gold-green glory, shutting out the sun.

The tardy shade moved forward to the noon ;
Betwixt the paths a dainty Beauty stept,
That swung a flower, and, smiling, hummed a tune,—
Before whose feet a barking spaniel leapt.

O'er her blue dress an endless blossom strayed ;
About her tendril-curls the sunlight shone ;
And round her train the tiger-lilies swayed,
Like courtiers bowing till the queen be gone.

She leaned upon the slab a little while,
Then drew a jewelled pencil from her zone,
Scribbled a something with a frolic smile,
Folded, inscribed, and niched it in the stone.

The shade slipped on, no swifter than the snail ;

There came a second lady to the place,

Dove-eyed, dove-robed, and something wan and pale—

An inner beauty shining from her face.

She, as if listless with a lonely love,

Straying among the alleys with a book,—

Herrick or Herbert,—watched the circling dove,

And spied the tiny letter in the nook.

Then, like to one who confirmation found

Of some dread secret half-accounted true,—

Who knew what hands and hearts the letter bound,

And argued loving commerce 'twixt the two,

She bent her fair young forehead on the stone ;

The dark shade gloomed an instant on her head ;

And 'twixt her taper-fingers pearled and shone

The single tear that tear-worn eyes will shed.

The shade slipped onward to the falling gloom ;

There came a soldier gallant in her stead,

Swinging a beaver with a swaling plume,

A ribboned love-lock rippling from his head ;

Blue-eyed, frank-faced, with clear and open brow,

Scar-seamed a little, as the women love ;

So kindly fronted that you marvelled how

The frequent sword-hilt had so frayed his glove ;

Who switched at Psyche plunging in the sun ;

Uncrowned three lilies with a backward swinge ;

And standing somewhat widely, like to one

More used to ' Boot and Saddle ' than to cringe

As courtiers do, but gentleman withal,

Took out the note ;—held it as one who feared

The fragile thing he held would slip and fall ;

Read and re-read, pulling his tawny beard ;

Kissed it, I think, and hid it in his breast ;
    Laughed softly in a flattered happy way,
Arranged the broidered baldrick on his chest,
    And sauntered past, singing a roundelay.

. . . . .

The shade crept forward through the dying glow ;
    There came no more nor dame nor cavalier ;
But for a little time the brass will show
    A small gray spot—the record of a tear.

THE SICK MAN AND THE BIRDS.

ÆGROTUS.

SPRING,—art thou come, O Spring !

I am too sick for words ;

How hast thou heart to sing,

O Spring, with all thy birds ?

MERULA.

I sing for joy to see again

The merry leaves along the lane,

The little bud grown ripe ;

And look, my love upon the bough !

Hark, how she calleth to me now,—

‘ Pipe ! pipe ! ’

ÆGROTUS.

Ah ! weary is the sun :
Love is an idle thing ;
But, Bird, thou restless one,
What ails thee, wandering ?

HIRUNDO.

By shore and sea I come and go
To seek I know not what ; and lo !
On no man's eaves I sit
But voices bid me rise once more,
To flit again by sea and shore,—
Flit ! Flit !

ÆGROTUS.

This is Earth's bitter cup :—
Only to seek, not know.
But Thou, that strivest up,
Why dost thou carol so ?

ALAUDA.

A secret Spirit gifteth me
With song, and wing that lifteth me,—
A Spirit for whose sake,
Striving amain to reach the sky,
Still to the old dark earth I cry—
‘Wake ! wake !’

ÆGROTUS.

My hope hath lost its wing.
Thou, that to Night dost call,
How hast thou heart to sing
Thy tears made musical ?

PHILOMELA.

Alas for me ! a dry desire
Is all my song,—a waste of fire
That will not fade nor fail ;
To me, dim shapes of ancient crime
Moan through the windy ways of time,
‘Wail ! wail !’

The Sick Man and the Birds. 181.

ÆGROTUS.

Thine is the sick man's song,—

Mournful, in sooth, and fit ;

Unrest that cries 'How long !'—

And the Night answers it.

THE DEATH OF PROCRIS.

A VERSION SUGGESTED BY THE SO-NAMED PICTURE OF PIERO DI COSIMO, IN THE NATIONAL GALLERY.

PROCRIS, the nymph, had wedded Cephalus ;—
He, till the spring had warmed to slow-winged days,
Heavy with June, untired and amorous,
Named her his love ; but now, in unknown ways,
His heart was gone ; and evermore his gaze
Turned from her own, and ever farther ranged
His woodland war ; while she, in dull amaze,
Beholding with the hours her husband changed,
Sighed for his lost caress, by some hard god estranged.

So, on a day, she rose and found him not.
Alone, with wet, sad eye, she watched the shade
Brighten below a soft-rayed sun that shot
Arrows of light through all the deep-leaved glade ;
Then, with weak hands, she knotted up the braid
Of her brown hair, and o'er her shoulders cast
Her crimson weed ; with faltering fingers made
Her golden girdle's clasp to join, and past
Down to the trackless wood, full pale and overcast.

And all day long her slight spear devious flew,
And harmless swerved her arrows from their aim,
For ever, as the ivory bow she drew,
Before her ran the still unwounded game.
Then, at the last, a hunter's cry there came,
And, lo, a hart that panted with the chase,
Thereat her cheek was lightened as with flame,
And swift she gat her to a leafy place,
Thinking, ' I yet may chance unseen to see his face.'

Leaping he went, this hunter Cephalus,
Bent in his hand his cornel bow he bare,
Supple he was, round-limbed and vigorous,
Fleet as his dogs, a lean Laconian pair.
He, when he spied the brown of Procris' hair
Move in the covert, deeming that apart
Some fawn lay hidden, loosed an arrow there ;
Nor cared to turn and seek the speeded dart,
Bounding above the fern, fast following up the hart.

But Procris lay among the white wind-flowers,
Shot in the throat. From out the little wound
The slow blood drained, as drops in autumn showers
Drip from the leaves upon the sodden ground.
None saw her die but Lelaps, the swift hound,
That watched her dumbly with a wistful fear,
Till, at the dawn, the hornèd wood-men found
And bore her gently on a sylvan bier,
To lie beside the sea, with many an uncouth tear.

PALOMYDES.

I.

HIM best in all the dim Arthuriad,
Of lovers of fair women, him I prize,—
The Pagan Palomydes. Never glad
Was he with sweetness of his lady's eyes,
Nor joy he had.

II.

But, unloved ever, still must love the same,
And riding ever through a lonely world,
Whene'er on adverse shield or crest he came,
Against the danger desperately hurled,
Crying her name.

III.

So I, who strove to You I may not earn,
Methinks, am come unto so high a place,
That though from hence I can but vainly yearn
For that averted favour of your face,
I shall not turn.

IV.

No, I am come too high. Whate'er betide,
To find the doubtful thing that fights with me,
Toward the mountain tops I still shall ride,
And cry your name in my extremity,
As Palomyde,

V.

Until the issue come. Will it disclose
No gift of grace, no pity made complete,
After much labour done,—much war with woes ?
Will you deny me still in Heaven, my sweet ;—
Ah, Death—who knows ?

A SONG OF ANGIOLA ON EARTH. ' .

THIS is my Lady's throne :—

Among green leaves, in bowers

From sunlight fenced with care

By great boughs overgrown ;

Her feet are deep in flowers,

They fall around her hair ;

There is no bird nor sylvan thing

But stays to listen, if she sing

Before I seek her there.

THIS is my Lady's face :—

A cloud of yellow hair

Stands round about her ear ;

188     A Song of Angiola on Earth.

She hath a mouth of grace,
    A forehead white and fair,
        And blue eyes very clear ;
Lids that go over while I see,
And shut the world away from me,
        Because she is so dear.

This is my Lady's dress :—
    In fine silk fairly fit,
        Blue as an egg is she ;
Broad bands her shoulders press
    With dark devices knit,
        And small pearls curiously.
A silver girdle holds her waist,
Whereon these words are rightly traced :—
        A true man taketh me.

This is my Lady's name :—
    It is as soft as air,
        As sweet as is the rose ;

A Song of Angiola on Earth. 189

No other sounds the same,
No song is half so fair,
No music's dying close ;—
But yet, methinks, 'twere sin to say
My Lady's name in open day
For him to speak who knows.

This is my Lady's praise :—
Shame before her is shamed,
Hate cannot hate repeat ;
She is so pure of ways
There is no sin is named
But falls before her feet ;
Because she is so frankly free,
So tender and so good to see,
Because she is so sweet.

This is my love of her :—
It waxeth ever new,
Nor waneth any whit ;

This all my heart doth stir,

Just that I may be true

And as she findeth fit ;

There is no thing she bids me do

But I would die to bear it through

Because she asketh it.

Sweet-swelling song of mine,

Take cassia, balm, and nard ;

Then hie thee fast with care,

Find out my Lady sweet,

With delicate white feet :

Before her feet incline,

And kiss them—kiss them hard,

And wipe them with thine hair,

Saying ‘ My Master bids thee know,

Madonna, that he greets thee so,

Seeing thou art so fair.’

A FLOWER SONG OF ANGIOLA.

Down where the garden grows,

Gay as a banner,

Spake to her mate the Rose

After this manner :—

‘ We are the first of flowers,

Plain-land or hilly,

All reds and whites are ours,

Are they not, Lily ?’

Then to the flowers I spake,—

‘ Watch ye my Lady

Gone to the leafy brake,

Silent and shady ;

When I am near to her,
Lily, she knows ;
How I am dear to her,
Look to it, Rose.'

Straightway the Blue-bell stooped,
Paler for pride,
Down where the Violet drooped,
Shy, at her side :—
' Sweetheart, save me and you,
Where has the summer kist
Flowers of as fair a hue,— Turkis or Amethyst ?'

Therewith I laughed aloud,
Spake on this wise,
' O little flowers so proud,
Have ye seen eyes

Change through the blue in them,—

Change till the mere

Loving that grew in them

Turned to a tear ?'

' Flowers, ye are bright of hue,

Delicate, sweet ;

Flowers, and the sight of you

Lightens men's feet ;

Yea ; but her worth to me,

Flowerets, even,

Sweetening the earth to me,

Sweeteneth heaven.

This, then, O Flowers, I sing ;

God, when He made ye

Made yet a fairer thing

Making my Lady ;—

Fashioned her tenderly,

Giving all weal to her ;—

Girdle ye slenderly,

Go to her, kneel to her,—

Saying, “ He sendeth us,

He the most dutiful,

Meetly he endeth us,

Maiden most beautiful !

Let us get rest of you,

Sweet, in your breast ;—

Die, being prest of you,

Die, being blest.”’

A SONG OF ANGIOLA DEAD.

SONG, art thou sad, my Song ?

Thou hast not ease nor sleep,

Thou art not gay nor glad ;

Hast thou not mourned too long ?

Speak to me, song, nor weep

Till thou grow gray and mad

For that all Love is fled,

Beauty and bountihed ;—

Song, thou art sad.

Song, ah how fair was she !—

Days but her praise repeat ;—

Men may seek out with care

Nowhere such eyes to see,

Nowhere such little feet,—

Yea, and such yellow hair ;

Nowhere like lips, I weet

Kisses thereon to eat ;—

Song, she was fair !

Song, and how sweet she was !

Spring breezes kissed her face,

Little leaves kissed her feet,

And the sun kissed, because

Nowhere in any place

Thing was to kiss so sweet ;

Nothing so dear as she,

Gentle and maidenly ;—

Song, she was sweet !

Song, but how good she was !

There was no word she said,

But it was wise and good ;

No abject thing but has

Out from her mercy fed,

Strong in her pity stood ;

There was no little child

But to her leapt and smiled ;—

Song, she was good !

How shall we wait, my song ?

There is no mirth in cup,

Nowhere a feast is spread ;

Life is all marred and wrong,

Grief hath consumed it up,

Now that our Love is fled

Earth hath no face to see

Pointing my sword for me ;—

Song, she is dead !

198      A Song of Angiola Dead.

Shall not we leave to sing ?

Nothing can wake her now,

Nothing can lift her head ;

There is no tune can bring

Back to her cheek and brow

Roses of white and red ;

Nothing of ours can stir

Words on the lips of her ;—

Song, she is dead !

Cease then from scent, my song,

Change thee thy myrrh for rue,

Myrtle for calamus ;

Bring for us garments long,

Weeds to our grief, and strew

Dust on the hair of us,

For that all Love is fled

Beauty and bountihed ;—

Song, she is dead !

A SONG OF ANGIOLA IN HEAVEN.

FLOWERS,—that have died upon my Sweet
Lulled by the rhythmic dancing beat

Of her young bosom under you,—
Now will I show you such a thing
As never, through thick buds of Spring,

Betwixt the daylight and the dew,
The Bird whose being no man knows—

The voice that waketh all night through,
Tells to the Rose.

200     A Song of Angiola in Heaven.

For lo,—a garden-place I found,
Well filled of leaves, and stilled of sound,
    Well flowered, with red fruit marvellous ;
And 'twixt the shining trunks would flit
Tall knights and silken maids, or sit
    With faces bent and amorous ;—
There, in the heart thereof, and crowned
    With woodbine and amaracus,
        My Love I found.

Alone she walked,—ah, well I wis,
My heart leapt up for joy of this !—
    Then when I called to her her name,—
The name, that like a pleasant thing
Men's lips remember, murmuring,
    At once across the sward she came,—
Full fain she seemed, my own dear maid,
And asked ever as she came,
        ' Where hast thou stayed ? '

A Song of Angiola in Heaven.      201

‘Where hast thou stayed?’—she asked as though

The long years were an hour ago ;

But I spake not, nor answerèd,

For, looking in her eyes, I saw,

A light not lit of mortal law ;

And in her clear cheeks’ changeless red,

And sweet, unshaken speaking found

That in this place the Hours were dead,

And Time was bound.

‘This is well done,’—she said,—‘in thee,

O Love, that thou art come to me,

To this green garden glorious ;

Now truly shall our life be sped

In joyance and all goodlihed,

For here all things are fair to us,

And none with burden is oppressed,

And none is poor or piteous,—

For here is Rest.

202     A Song of Angiola in Heaven.

‘No formless Future blurs the sky ;
Men mourn not here, with dull dead eye,
By shrouded shapes of Yesterday ;
Betwixt the Coming and the Past
The flawless life hangs fixen fast
In one unwearying To-Day,
That darkens not ; for Sin is shriven,
Death from the doors is thrust away,
And here is Heaven.’

At ‘Heaven’ she ceased ;—and lifted up
Her fair head like a flower-cup,
With rounded mouth, and eyes aglow ;
Then set I lips to hers, and felt,—
Ah, God,—the hard pain fade and melt,
And past things change to painted show
The song of quiring birds outbroke ;
The lit leaves laughed,—sky shook, and
I swooned,—and woke.

A Song of Angiola in Heaven. 203

And now, O Flowers,
—Ye that indeed are dead,—
Now for all waiting hours,
Well am I comforted ;
For of a surety, now, I see,
That, without dim distress
Of tears, or weariness,
My Lady, verily, awaiteth me ;
So that until with Her I be,
For my dear Lady's sake
I am right fain to make
Out from my pain a pillow, and to take
Grief for a golden garment unto me ;
Knowing that I, at last, shall stand
In that green garden-land,
And, in the holding of my dear Love's hand,
Forget the grieving and the misery.

THE DYING OF TANNEGUY DU BOIS.

' En los nidas antano no hay pajaros hogano.'

LAST WORDS OF DON QUIXOTE.

YEA, I am passed away, I think, from this ;

Nor helps me herb, nor any leechcraft here,

But lift me hither the sweet cross to kiss,

And witness ye, I go without a fear.

Yea, I am sped, and never more shall see,

As once I dreamed, the show of shield and crest,

Gone southward to the fighting by the sea ;—

There is no bird in any last year's nest !

The Dying of Tanneguy du Bois. 205

Yea, with me now all dreams are done, I ween,
Grown faint and unremembered ; voices call
High up, like misty warders dimly seen
Moving at morn on some Burgundian wall ;
And all things swim—as when the charger stands
Quivering between the knees, and East and West
Are filled with flash of scarves and waving hands ;—
There is no bird in any last year's nest !

Is she a dream I left in Aquitaine ?—
My wife Giselle,—who never spoke a word,
Although I knew her mouth was drawn with pain,
Her eyelids hung with tears ; and though I heard
The strong sob shake her throat, and saw the cord
Her necklace made about it ;—she that prest
To watch me trotting till I reached the ford ;—
There is no bird in any last year's nest.

206     The Dying of Tanneguy du Bois

Ah ! I had hoped, God wot,—had longed that Should watch me from the little-lit tourelle,

Me, coming riding by the windy lea—

Me, coming back again to her, Giselle ;

Yea, I had hoped once more to hear him call,

The curly-pate, who, rushen lance in rest,

Stormed at the lilies by the orchard wall ;—

There is no bird in any last year's nest !

But how, my Masters, ye are wrapt in gloom !

This Death will come, and whom he loves he cleaves

Sheer through the steel and leather ; hatin whom

He smites in shameful wise behind the great

'Tis a fair time with Dennis and the Saints,

And weary work to age, and want for rest,

When harness groweth heavy, and one faints,

With no bird left in any last year's nest !

The Dying of Tanneguy du Bois. 207

Give ye good hap, then, all. For me, I lie

Broken in Christ's sweet hand, with whom shall rest

To keep me living, now that I must die ;—

There is no bird in any last year's nest !

THE BOOKWORM.

WE flung the close-kept casement wide ;
The myriad atom-play
Streamed, with the mid-day's glancing tide,
Across him as he lay ;
Only the unused summer gust
Moved the thin hair of Dryasdust.

The notes he writ were barely dry ;
The entering breeze's breath
Fluttered the fruitless casuistry,
Checked at the leaf where Death—
The final commentator—thrust
His cold ' Here endeth Dryasdust.'

O fool and blind ! The leaf that grew,
The opening bud, the trees,
The face of men, he nowise knew,
Or careless turned from these
To delve, in folios' rust and must,
The tomb he lived in, dry as dust.

He left, for mute Salmasius,
The lore a child may teach,—
For saws of dead Libanius,
The sound of uttered speech ;
No voice had pierced the sheep-skin crust
That bound the heart of Dryasdust.

And so, with none to close his eyes,
And none to mourn him dead,
He in his dumb book-Babel lies
With gray dust garmented.

Let be ; pass on. It is but just—
These were thy gods, O Dryasdust !

Dig we his grave where no birds greet,—

He loved no song of birds ;

Lay we his bones where no men meet,—

He loved no spoken words ;

He let his human-nature rust—

Write his Hic Jacet in the Dust.

THE PEACOCK ON THE WALL.

A MEDIÆVAL BALLAD, IN THE MODERN MANNER.

A DOUGHTY knight was Hue le Beau,
A flower of men, perfay,
A gentle squire of dames also
In his peculiar way.

I say 'peculiar,' for in truth,
According to his view,
Men must have had eternal youth—
Or nothing else to do.

He held that but when years had past
In courtesies minute,
His love should yield herself at last
To his protracted suit.

Culture, he urged, could love extend
To lengths so undefined
A man might quite a lifetime spend
Before he spoke his mind.

Alix le Fay was straight and tall,
A maid of high degree ;
And by her father's orchard wall
He met her,—frequently.

These were the merely prologue days,
And on her lily cheek,
Sir Hue, for quite three hours, would gaze,
But not a word would speak ;

Then, feeling first to ascertain
Whether the grass was wet,
This blameless knight and man was fain
Upon his knees to get ;

And lifting up her fingers two,
With gentle gesture, he
Would lay his bearded lip thereto
And kiss,—respectfully.

Seven years Sir Hue had gazed and kissed,
In this enlightened wise,
And only on Saints' days had missed
His usual exercise ;—

Seven years Sir Hue had kissed and gazed,
And in no detail swerved,
Till he, one afternoon,—amazed,
Perceived he was observed.

For lo, upon the orchard wall,
A Peacock-bird would rest,
That seemed to watch his motions all
With wonder manifest.

‘Sir Knight,’—(at once began the bird),
‘Though I appear abrupt,
Believe me that it ne’er occurred
To me to interrupt.

‘Fair is the path of virtue traced
By men of low estate,
Much more, ennobled by the taste
And fancy of the great.

‘A courtship, so refined, sedate
And singular in kind,
Could hardly fail to captivate
The well-conducted mind.

‘ Good hap, the highest and the least
Can admiration stir,
And make of either bird or beast,
A Hero-worshipper ;

‘ So I,—a bird—can yet revere
The Beautiful—the True ;—
Permit me then, I pray, Messire,
To join your party too,

‘ For you, I feel, will understand
To closely contemplate
A suit so delicately planned,
Must surely elevate.’

The Knight could not refuse request
So gracefully preferred :
Thence, as the long amour progressed
The blandly curious bird

Watched from the wall the varied shades
     Of 'Sweetness' and of 'Light,'
 As good Sir Hue went through the grades
     Of Passion grown polite.

But, long ere Alix made him hers
     Departing from its post,
 The Peacock, being full of years,
     Had yielded up the ghost ;

And after, when Sir Hue the maid
     By slow degrees had gained,
 He had the circumstance portrayed
     Upon a window stained,

Showing himself, Alix le Fay,
     The Peacock watching by ;
 ' And there it stands unto this day
     To witness if I lie.'

The 'incident' is, however, thus briefly referred to in Charles Blanc's Histoire des Peintres de tous les Écoles:—'Une fois cependant Boucher se laissa prendre à un amour simple et candide. Un jour, en passant dans la Rue Ste.-Anne, il aperçut une jeune fruitière dont la beauté l'éblouit. C'était au temps des cerises. Le peintre la regarda et elle se laissa regarder sans songer à ses paniers. Ses lèvres parurent plus belles que ses cerises. Un amour naïf et tendre naquit de cette échange de regards; Boucher y trouva quelques jours de délices; Rosine y trouva la mort après une rapide bonheur.'
